SECRET RAIDER AGAIN PILLAGES JOHNSON FILES

Senator Misses Nothing After Return Visit of Prowler.

LETTER CABINETS LEFT IN DISORDER

Spy Ransacked Records in Office for First Time Friday.

GUARD IS ASSIGNED AS SPECIAL SENTRY

Three Other Senators' Offices Previously Had Been Similarly Rifled.

(Associated Press.)

For the second time in as many nights the offices of Senator Johnson (Republican), California, were entered Saturday night or early Sunday and his files ransacked.

Visiting his office yesterday with his secretary, the Californian again found he files opened and correspondence disturbed in spite of the wide publicity that had been given a similar search made Friday night.

Six file cases had been opened and all the correspondence, which had been placed in order Saturday after the searchers had scattered it about, again was found out of place.

One Entrance Unguarded.

A cabinet, which is kept locked, was not touched this time, although the preceding night the lock had been picked. A check of the guards about the Senate Office Building showed that a man was on duty outside the office until midnight, the senator's secretary said, but that later one entrance had been left unguarded.

The senator's assistants professed themselves at a loss to understand the daring return of the ransacker so soon after his first visit, especially in view of the agitation that resulted.

The searches of the Californian's offices followed close upon similar visits to the rooms of Senators McKellar and Brock, Tennessee Democrats, and Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah.

Nothing Reported Missing.

Although small desk articles appeared to have been taken from the offices of these senators, nothing was reported missing from Johnson's office after either search. But the senator was convinced the searcher was seeking something in his personal correspondence.

Saturday, picking up some private letters which had been left lying on top of a cabinet, he commented that "somebody's ears are tingling if this was read."

Acting Shairman Hale, of the Senate rules committee, had sought to have additional guards employed Saturday, but the sergeant at arms said he could not do so without special Senate authority. However, a special guard has been assigned to keep constant watch on Johnson's office.

Colombia Investigates Killing of U.S. Employe

Bogota, Colombia, May 11 (A.P.).—The killing of Paul L. Keating, of Oil City, Pa., in a payroll robbery at Barranca, Bermeja, yesterday, was being actively investigated by Colombian authorities today. The Governor of Santander Province has sent his secretary of state to examine a number of suspects arrested by the police. The authorities observed great secrecy about their plans.

Mr. eKating was paymaster for the Tropical Oil Co. Accompanied by three employes and a member of the constabulary he was paying the workmen from funds of about 35,000 pesos (about $33,350) when robbers appeared and opened fire with revolvers.

Society Flier Crashes; Gas Tank Found Empty

Huntington, N. Y., May 11 (A.P.).—Robert D. Huntington, young social registerite, of Mill Neck, N. Y., was injured tonight in a crash of his airplane in an orchard in South Huntington. He pulled the the parachute out of the wreckage, hired a taxicab and went home. There a physician treated him for cuts on the face and hands and the loss of several teeth.

Huntington, a marine engineer and graduate of the United States Naval Academy in the class of 1923, said he did not know what caused the crash. Examination of the wrecked plane showed that the gasoline tank was empty.

Grain of Corn Causes Death of 7-Year-Old

Charlotte, N. C., May 11 (A.P.).—Herbert Lee, 7, only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lee, of Mint Hill, N. C., died in a Charlotte hospital today following an operation for removing a grain of corn which had lodged in his windpipe.

Unable to reach the grain with instruments, doctors operated, but congestion developed, which is believed to have caused the boy's death.

20 WOMEN TO FACE RUM CHARGES TODAY

War on Feminine Bootleggers Brings Mothers Before Two States' Courts.

ONE IS 60 YEARS OLD

Texarkana, Ark.-Tex., May 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—War on women bootleggers, declared by Federal and State authorities of southwest Arkansas and northeast Texas last summer, will bring a score or more before two courts' sessions opening here tomorrow on charges of violating the prohibition law.

Every woman scheduled to appear before the courts is the mother of from three to eight children—one is a gray-haired mother of 60 years, while two are 25-year-old widows.

Cases against six of the fourteen women arrested in Federal raids in Miller County, Ark., last July in the opening campaign against women liquor vendors are scheduled for disposition in the Federal Court for the Western District of Arkansas. Mrs Calendonia Burns, 60, a pioneer resident of Hempstead County, Ark., will face trial in the same court along with her youngest son.

Two 25-year-old widows will face trial on charges of bootlegging in Bowie County (Tex.) District Court, while appeals of two other wotmen already given one-year sentences in the same court are pending.

The campaign launched by Deputy Prohibition Administrator S. M. Gurley, of Arkansas, last July brought the first women into court on bootlegging charges here in the history of the Texarkana area.

In making his raids, which resulted in seven white women and seven Negroes being arrested, Gurley declared that 75 per cent of the liquor being sold in southwest Arkansas was being peddled by women. He declared that men relatives and friends were hiding behind petticoats to escape the law, and that women who expected a group of crying children to create sympathy that would allow them to escape the penalty for their crime were due for a surprise.

The war was taken up in Bowie County a few days later, when a stockingless flapper faced Judge G. W. Ragland on a charge of bootlegging and heard him declare, "I'm titred of women appearing before me and begging for sympathy because they are women. Women are now wearing pants, smoking cigarettes, holding

Attempted Nonstop Hop to Buenos Aires Ends in Tragedy.

Storm Short Distance Off Costa Rican Coast Dooms Craft.

Mexico City, May 11 (A.P.).—Col. Pablo Sidar was killed today in attempting to make a nonstop flight from Mexico to Buenos Aires. His airplane dived into the sea 3 miles south of the Costa Rican seaport of Porto Limon. The Department of Communications announced this evening that both Col. Sidar and his copilot, Lieut. Rovirosa, had perished.

The big American-made monoplane Morelos, which had successfully taken off from Cerro-Loco ranch, Oaxaca, this morning, was completely wrecked. Porto Limon dispatches to the department of comunications said the acident had occurred during a storm which had suddenly sprung up.

The Morelos passed over Porto Limon at about 3:40 p. m., and was identified. Some time later she reappeared, but meanwhile a storm had developed. As it broke and the first drops of rain began to fall, the airplane was seen to plunge into the sea. By air line the aviators had covered about 1,000 miles from San Jeronimo, near Cerro Loco Ranch, to Porto Limon. A rescue party extricated Col. Sidar's body. Apparently the two aviators had no time to use their parachutes. Lieut. Rovirosa's body was wedged in the wreckage.

The department of communication said that only Col. Sidar and Lieut. Rovirosa were in the Morelos. Reports that a mechanic named Enriquez had accompanied them were denied.

The airplane was said to have reappeared over Porto Limon at about 4:15 p. m., and cruised about while Sidar looked for a suitable landing place. The accident occurred apparently about 5 p. m. (about 6 p. m. E. S. T.). Col Sidar had previously been sighted off the coast of Salvador, seven hours earlier. According to his plan, he was then to fly over the tip of the Costa Rican coast and head across the sea for South America.

Instead, he apparently cut across from the Pacific Coast of Central America to the Atlantic. Salvador is on the Pacific side and Porto Limon on the Atlantic.

When the Morelos left Cerro Loco, the mechine appeared to be working perfectly. The motor lifted its 5-ton load with comparative ease, and Col. Sidar got off the ground before he had covered two-thirds of his special runway.

Col. Sidar, since his successful flight through Latin-America last year, has

THREE RECORDS SET BY YOUTHFUL PILOT

Frank Goldsborough Makes Round Trip Flight Across Country.

IS GREETED BY MOTHER

New York, May 11 (A.P.).—Nineteen-year-old Frank Goldsborough dropped from the sky to the field of the New York City airport today, having set three transcontinental records for other American youths to shoot at. The son of Bryce Goldsborough, who lost his life with Mrs. Florence Grayson in the plane Dawn somewhere in the Atlantic in 1927, arrived here at 2:18 p. m. (E. S. T.) from Los Angeles.

He completed the transcontinental journey in 28 hours and 18 minutes flying time, setting a junior record for West-East flight. He had stopped overnight three times, and six times for gas and fuel.

Thirteen days ago he flew to Los Angeles from Westfield, N. J., in 34 hours and 3 minutes, another junior record. The flying time for the round trip was 62 hours and 21 minutes, a third junior record.

The best previous time for the West-East flight was made by Dick James, who covered the distance in 48 hours. For the other two flights no previous records had been set.

The first person Frank greeted today, Mother's Day, was appropriately his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Goldsborough. He kissed her several times while cameras clicked, and then gave a like embrace to his grandmother, Mrs. Anna Jacobi. He lives with these

WOMAN IS SHOT AND MAN TURNS PISTOL ON SELF

"Don't Cry, Honey, I'm Going With You," He Says and Fires Gun.

WIFE MAY NOT LIVE FROM WOUND IN HEAD

Husband Less Seriously Hurt as Bullet Grazes His Forehead.

AFTERNOON QUARREL PRECEDES SHOOTING

Police Investigate Mystery of Possible First Mate in Affair.

Saying to his wife whom he had just shot, "Don't cry, honey; I'm going with you!" a man yesterday afternoon placed a gun up to his head and pulled the trigger to release a bullet which merely grazed his forehead.

The two were found in a second-floor room in a romoing house on Sixth stret, near E street northwest. Both of them were unconscious last night and the woman was in a serious condition. The police term it an attempted murder and suicide.

The man, Oscar Hibbard, 30 years old, and a woman who is supposed to be his wife, Carrie Hibbard, 21 years old, were found by Mrs. Rose Robertson, 18 years old, who was a roomer at the residence, when she returned from work about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

According to Mrs. Robertson, whose room adjoins the one in which Hibbard and the woman were found, they were lying on the bed groaning when she reached the top of the stairs. The door was open, she said, and the room was in complete disorder.

Both Removed to Hospital.

Police were notified at once and the ambulance from Casualty Hospital was called. Both persons were removed to the hospital, where it was found that the woman had been shot in the left ear, the bullet coming out through her mouth.

Hibbard was less seriously wounded; the bullet, fired from a small .32 caliber revolver, merely grazing his forehead. Lieut. Edward Kelly, chief of the homicide squad, expressed the opinion that the man had shot the woman and then turned the gun on himself. A straw hat, which Hibbard had evidently been wearing at the time, showed signs of powder burns near the brim, which led them to think that the gun had been held pressed against his head when he fired.

The gun, found in the room by Sergt. C. E. Perry and Private W. C. Grooms, of the Sixth Precinct, had been fired several times, and the barrel was empty. Two shots were found

POLICE INVESTIGATE ATLANTA SUICIDE AS BAKER KILLING LEAD

Man Found Hanging Near Station; Marks Cut Out of Clothes.

DESCRIPTION CHECKS WITH THAT SENT OUT

Shelby Gets More Exact Data on Way Girl's Slayer Looked.

MURDER HOUR FIXED AS BETWEEN 6 AND 7

Tent Dweller in Virginia Is Sought After Report of Pistol's Sale.

Attention of authorities searching for the killer of Mary Baker turned to Atlanta, Ga., last night where the body of a man, with all identification marks removed from his clothing, was found early yesterday hanging from a rafter supporting a large billboard near the Terminal Station.

Examination of the body by Atlanta detectives and Department of Justice agents disclosed a marked similarity to the description sent out by Washington police. It was evident that the man had made careful plans to prevent identifications of his remains.

Labels on the dark grey suit he was wearing had been cut out. Trademarks and the dealer's name had been removed from a grey felt hat. Nothing of any value was found in his pockets. Agents of the Department of Justice in the Southern city were working on the theory that the suicide may have been connected with the killing of the Baker girl.

General Description Checks.

A description of the man given out in Atlanta last night described him as being about 32 years old, 5 feet 8 inches in height, about 160 pounds in weight, and broad in the shoulders. He wore a dark gray suit with a pin stripe and a gray hat.

This general description is similar to that given by local police by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Wood and Francis Rice, who witnessed the attack on Miss Baker on April 11 while she was in her automobile near the Ellipse.

As soon as local police were notified of the probability of the man's connection with the killing, steps were taken to obtain more detailed information regarding the man's clothing. Police had not learned last night whether there were any laundry marks on it. Atlanta detectives were asked to concentrate on the condition of the apparel. There were no bloodstains, according to Atlanta police.

New Facts Are Learned.

In the past week Inspector William S. Shelby has obtained a more accurate description of the man who is believed to have kiled the girl. This description tallies more closely with the man found in Atlanta than the descriptions given by the witnesses of the Ellipse attack.

Inspector Shelby will not reveal the source of the new description but it is more detailed than the others and it has placed the time of the commission of the murder between 6 and 7 o'clock on the night of April 11.

This lead of Inspector Shelby's he regards as the most important development since the attack i nthe Ellipse was reported.

Tent Dweller Sought.

Soon after the police had requestioned Robert J. Janney, latest suspect in the case, word came to headquarters that a "tent dweller" had been seen early yesterday in Fairfax County. Lieut. Edward J. Kelly and Department of Justice agents left for the spot.

For the past week they have been seeking the man, who is thought to have lived in a tent at the time of

REECE PLAN URGED FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

House Military Commnittee Favors Private Lease for Project.

REPORT READY TODAY

(Associated Press.)

Taking the view that all possible means of satisfactorily disposing of Muscle Shoals to private interests should be resorted to before Government operation is considered, the House military committee has concluded in a draft of its formal report to the House that the Reece plan for leasing of the project "is the very best that can be formulated."

The committee plans to file the report today. Special legislative status to permit early consideration of the plan is sought in the hope that Congress can finally agree upon legislation that will meet with executive approval and turn the $160,000,000 project to useful purpose after ten years of idleness.

The Reece plan was substituted for the Norris resolution to provide for Government operation, which recently was adopted by the Senate. It would authorize the President to set up a board of three to lease the project for 50 years for the manufacture of fertilizer and development of power. Favorable action by the House would send the measure to conference.

The plan was approved by the committee by a vote of 11 to 5. It

M'BRIDE AID LAUDS LOBBYING PRACTICE

Government Would Suffer if It Were Abandoned, Says Cherringtno.

UPHOLDS "PROPER" WAY

(Associated Press.)

Defending "proper lobbying," Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, head of the educational department of the Anti-saloon League, in a statement last night said that until supermen and superwomen are elected to legislative bodies "citizens will feel justified in presenting their attitude toward proposed legislation."

Dr. Cherrington asserted that "to denounce all lobbying merely because some lobbying is done by self-seeking interests is as ridiculous as to denounce all food because some food is adulterated."

"The idea that a legislator should confer only with other legislators and should not be approached by any one else in regard to matters of legislation," he added, "is not in harmony with a representative form of government."

His statement was issued as the Senate lobby committee was planning to resume tomorrow its investigation into the efforts of the Antisaloon League to advocate prohibition. P. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the league, has been questioned for two days by the commit-

Alleged Bandit Trio Rams Auto Into Bus

Little Hope Held for Recovery of One Suspect After Crash at Berwyn; Three Prisoners Linked With Robbery of Taxi Driver.

Three alleged automobile thieves who are suspected by police of having held up a taxi driver and tied him to a tree after robbing him are in Casualty Hospital after the automobile in which they were riding crashed headon into a bus at Berwyn, Md., early yesterday.

Authorities last night held out little hope for the recovery of one of the prisoners, Lawrence Minnix, 22 years old, of Alexandria, Va. His skull was fractured and he suffered internal injuries.

The other prisoners, Kenneth Poole, 20 years old, said to have been indicted recently in Alexandria for housebreaking, and William Cator, 19 years old, also of Alexandria, suffered severe bruises on the head and body.

Edgar Trotman, operator of a Nevin Co. bus, told police that he was proceeding toward the District from Berwyn when he noticed a car approach at a high speed. He said that he drove off the road into the field in order to permit the car to pass. As he was halting his car the approaching automobile ran off the road and struck the bus head-on, he said.

The impact threw the three occupants into the road. The rescue squad from Prince George County wer summoned and removed the men to the hospital. A search of the wreckage disclosed a revolver and numerous shells.

Trotman and two passengers in his bus escaped injury.

The automobile in which the men were riding was stolen from Tenth and I streets northwest Saturday night. It belonged to Frank L. Ferrone, of 1324 Euclid street northwest. The men who stole the machine changed the license plates.

The prisoners in the hospital are suspected by the District police as having planned to hold up the bus. They, however, deny that they had any such plans and also declare they did not hold up James R. Hill, taxi driver, and tie him to a tree in Colesville Saturday night.

Hill's story to the police was that three men hailed his cab at Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue. He said that he drove out to Colesville, where at gun point they forced him to leave the cab. They took a strong rope and tied him to a tree. They placed his coat over his head, and he remained tied until a passerby freed him.

The bandits drove away in the taxi. A search in Maryland and the District for the car proved fruitless. Hill will go to the Casualty Hospital today to determine whether or not the prisoners there are the same men who held him up.

Investigation into the activities of Minnix, Cator and Poole is being conducted by Detectives Wolf, Davis and Jett, of the automobile squad, and Detective Sergt. Kuehlin, of the Detective Bureau.

Drunken Passenger Fights Plane Pilot 3,000 Feet Up

Lives of Six, Two of Them Women, Are Endangered When Inebriate Suddenly Attempts to Take Control of the Craft.

New York, May 11 (A.P.).—A two-minute fight 3,000 feet in the air between an airplane pilot and an intoxicated man, who wanted to fly the plane, ended today in victory for the pilot, whose skill in uppercutting probably saved six lives.

With five passengers, including two women, Tex Anding took off from the Gates Flying Service Field in Jackson Heights. He did not know that one of the men had been drinking until the passenger tried to jerk him away from the controls. While the others watched in terror and the plane swayed dizzily, the pilot and passenger fought furiously until finally Anding knocked his opponent unconscious with a blow to the chin.

He landed immediately, and the man, reviving, scurried away, flinging stones as he left. He was not apprehended.

Anding, a stripling with a slow Texas drawl, was calm as he told of his breathless struggle with the drunken man.

"I had to hit the guy after he almost sent us into a loop," he said, "and if I'd had a hammer I'd have hit him with that."

But the passengers were not so calm. Their faces were white when they landed and they clearly showed

Dr. Work Falls in Stream At Hoover's Fishing Camp

Former Head of Republican National Committee Tricked by Unsteady Log in Helping Build Dam; Party Returns to Capital.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover and the friends who accompanied him on the week-end fishing trip to his Rapidan River lodge in Virginia arrived at 8:40 o'clock last night at the White House.

The party stopped on the roadside about half way to Washington and enjoyed a picnic supper which had been prepared before the departure from the camp.

Orange, Va., May 11 (A.P.).—The quiet of a restful day at President Hoover's fishing camp on the Rapidan was broken today by the excitement of fishing Dr. Hubert Work, former chairman of the Republican national committee, out of the trout stream.

Dr. Work fell in the shallow waters of the Rapidan when he stepped on a log which rolled under him. He emerged undamaged except for a wetting. After drying his clothes he rejoined the presidential party working on a dam which Mr. Hoover started last year to improve the trout fishing.

The President and his friends, leaving the mountain retreat late in the day, expected to arrive at the White House after dark. As fishing is barred at the Rapidan camp on Sundays, most of the morning was spent idling about the camp's community hall.

the slaying and who has since disappeared.

Police were said to have learned last night that the "tent dweller" had sold a .32-caliber revolver two days after the Baker murder, allegedly to a sign painter for 50 cents. Efforts were being made to find the painter.

Lead Bullet Found.

Early yesterday Lieut. Kelly and Department of Justice agents again interrogated Janney regarding his whereabouts on April 11. Park Policeman W. E. Riley, who captured Janney after, it is alleged, he had annoyed a woman who was in the vicinity of the Ellipse, and Patrolman P. R. Toland brought to Lieut. Kelly a .32-caliber lead bullet which they found in Janney's home yesterday.

Bullets recovered in his home, on New York avenue near Ninth street, on Saturday night were steel-jacketed and for use in an automatic pistol. Slugs found in Mary Baker's body were .32-caliber and of lead.

Police said yesterday that Janney has told conflicting stories regarding his whereabouts on April 11. His earlier story that he was at home on that day was blasted by police. He presented a pawn check dated April 11, dated in New York City, as evidence that he was in that city.

Man Sought for Alibi.

New York authorities yesterday were asked to check details of Janney's story that he stopped at the Woodstock Hotel there on April 10. A man with whom Janney said he had been on April 11 in New York was being sought to have him corroborate or deny Janney's alibi.

Today detectives will check the authenticity of the pawn check, which Janney says he received when he offered a watch. Several of his personal effects were taken from his room yesterday. One of the more important articles is a notebook containing several addresses, which police think may lead to the solution of other crimes.

According to police, Janney has a criminal record. Patrolman Riley said he found a hypodermic needle and a "cooking outfit," used in preparing narcotics for injection, in Janney's room yesterday.

LONG BATTLE LOOMS ON FLEXIBLE CLAUSE

Connally States Democrats Will Defend It if All Summer Is Needed.

SUGAR MAN URGES DUTY

(Associated Press.)

A Democratic warning was thrown out to the Republicans yesterday that any attempt to eliminate from the tariff bill the flexible clause repealing presidential rate-changing power would be fought on the Senate floor "if it takes all summer."

This provision, opposed by President Hoover, is carried in the Senate bill. The House measure would continue in effect the 8-year-old executive flexible policy. Conferees on the Hawley-Smoot bill will resume their sittings tomorrow or Wednesday in an attempt to work out a compromise on this phase of the tariff issue. The conference report will not be submitted to the Senate until this compromise is reached.

Senator Connally, of Texas, a Democratic member of the Senate finance committee, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, said supporters of the Senate's flexible clause "propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer."

Amendment Held Fundamental.

"The Senate amendment restoring to Congress the tariff-making power is absolutely fundamental," the Texan asserted. "If the tariff bill passes it must restore to the representatives of the people the right to make laws that govern them."

Calling attention to the Senate conferees' pledge that they would not recede on the proposition without another vote in the Senate, Senator Connally said: "The war board of the administration forces is now frantically planning the destruction of the Senate flexible amendment. The grand strategy is to kill this amendment and then hammer through the high schedules of the bill."

Efforts to reopen the sugar schedule by concurrent resolution to correct an alleged error in calculating the duty on refined sugar continued to receive attention over the weekend.

Increase in Imports Claimed.

Rudolph Spreckels, New York refiner and president of the Sugar Institute, in a statement said under the present duty importations of refined sugar have increased about 415 per cent. Yet, he added, the pending bill proposes not only to remove the "existing inadequate duty," but to "give Cuban refined sugar a premium of 2 cents per 100 pounds against our domestic cane sugar refining industry."

"The sugar schedule in the pending bill places a duty of 2 cents per pound on Cuban raw sugar and 2.12 cents on Cuban refined," he said.

"It requires" he went on, "107 pounds of raw sugar to produce 100 pounds of refined sugar; therefore United States refiners must pay 2 cents per pound duty on 107 pounds of raw sugar or $2.14 per 100 pounds on the 100 pounds of refined sugar produced therefrom, whereas the Cuban refined would pay a duty of only $2.12 per 100 pounds."

Hershey Official Replied To.

Replying to the statement of John E. Snyder, vice president of the Hershey Corporation, which maintains refineries in Cuba, Mr. Spreckels said the Hershey interests "took money out of the United States to engage in the refining of sugar in Cuba, employing cheap labor, and displacing domestic refined sugar manufactured in the United States with American labor."

In a further statement today, Mr. Snyder said one of the principal motives underlying the effort to obtain a higher refined duty in the pending bill "is to compel Hershey, a large American industry financed entirely with American capital, to become dependent upon members of the Sugar Institute for refined cane sugar."

Pope's Name Day To Be Celebrated

Church Head Will Receive Felicitations From Cardinals.

Vatican City, May 11 (A.P.).—Pope Pius' "onomastico," or name day, falls tomorrow, and in accordance with custom, those cardinals resident in or visiting Rome will call upon him to congratulate him on the occasion. His holiness' Christian name is Achille, the Italianized form of Achilleus, and therefore St. Achilleus, whose feast it is tomorrow, is considered his patron.

In most parts of Italy, the "onomastico," or patron saint's day, is observed almost as birthdays are in Anglo-Saxon countries, with gifts, messages of good omen and the like. But while the Pope will receive numerous felicitations tomorrow, by cable and telegram, the imminence of his seventy-third anniversary, falling May 31, will preclude any celebration on a large scale at this time.

The St. Achilleus for whom he was christened was the companion in martyrdom of St. Nereus. Both were executed toward the end of the first century. The church erected in honor of their memory, standing near the baths of Caracalla and supposed to contain their remains, is the titular church of Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia.

RETALIATORY DUTIES PLANNED BY CANADA

$200,000,000 in U. S. Business to Be Hit in New Tariff Revision Proposals.

BRITISH GOODS FAVORED

(Associated Press.)

Tariff revision proposals of the Canadian government as advanced this month will impose higher import duties on between $175,000,000 and $225,000,000 worth of United States products customarily supplied each year to that country.

Further, products of the British Empire, more or less competitive to those of the United States, which Canada rodinarily imports to the value of $200,000,000 a yera, will be given either increased preference in duties or an entirely free import status. This is the conclusion announced yesterday by a Commerce Department analysis of the new Canadian tariff projects, which were formulated May 1 by the Dominion minister of finance.

"Competition between imports from the British Empire and the United States is substantially increased," the departmental review of the new Canadian measure says, "about 216 items being added to the free list under the British preferential tariff. American exporters in many lines will be required to lay greater stress on service and quality."

As a response to the pending American tariff bill, the Canadian law has widely extended the scope of countervailing duties, under which Canada will place duties against imports entering her border from any country which equal tariff duties imposed by that country on the Canadian products. Grain, meats, poultry products, dairy products and iron piping are among the additional items specifically made subject to the countervailing system. On metal manufactures of nearly all kinds the preference to British products is increased, and in many cases the rates that will affect the competing products when imported from the United States are increasde.

Freedmen's Observes Hospital Day Today

Hospital day, in conformity with the attitude of other hospitals throughout the country, will be celebrated today with fitting ceremonies at Freedmen's Hospital, which institution has developed a class A rating in the American Hospital Association. Hospital authorities have expressed a desire that the public become more thoroughly acquainted with the internal administration of the institution.

Its buildings and grounds, which cover four city blocks, have an approximate value of $4,000,000. To demonstrate the manner in which the clinics and other facilities are conducted, it is planned tomorrow to keep open house from 3 to 5 o'clock, for a close-up inspection by the public, with guides to escort visitors through the institution, explaining the details connected with its maintenance.

TROOPS KEEP ORDER IN SHERMAN, TEXAS

Sightseers at Mob Scene Disciplined in Regime of Martial Law.

MACHINE GUNS TRAINED

Sherman, Tex., May 11 (A.P.).—Patroling the streets under a hot sun and manning machine guns placed at strategic points, Texas National Guardsmen maintained strict order under martial law here today.

The highways leading into Sherman and the streets of this north Texas city were crowded with Sunday motorists who came to see the burned Grayson County Courthouse and the Negro residence district stormed last Friday and Friday night by a mob incensed over the criminal attack upon a white woman by George Hughes, 41-year-old Negro.

Hughes was killed during the rioting. A coroner's jury declared he was suffocated when he was locked in a vault in the courthouse.

The Negro was left in the vault where he had been placed for safety when Texas rangers and county officers were driven from the courthouse by the fire set by the mob.

The decision meant the coroner's jury believed Hughes was dead when entrance into the thick walled vault was forced by the mob, using acetylene torches and dynamite after the courthouse was destroyed. His body, nevertheless, was dragged through the streets and then burned in the Negro district.

McGee Names Lieutenants.

The military order prohibiting the congregating of more than three persons tended to cramp the activities of today's sightseers. The order was one of the first issued by the commandant, Col. Lawrence E. McGee, of Dallas.

Under the official instructions, ways and means of getting to the bottom of the uprising were arranged. He appointed Col. L. S. Davidson, of Dallas, 124th Cavalry, Texas National Guard, provost marshal, and named Majs. Earl Z. Crowdus, of Dallas; S. J. Houghton, jr., of Dallas, and John Naylor, of Fort Worth, assistant provost marshals.

He also named Davidson, Crowdus and Naylor to constitute a court of inquiry with supreme authority to investigate and to direct arrests.

All business places, except hotels, restaurants and drug stores, were ordered to close at 6 p. m.

Sheriff Under Orders.

Martial law was clamped down last night under a proclamation by Gov. Dan Moody well after the rioting had ceased, but in the face of widely reported rumors that a new onslaught on the jail was planned in an effort to liberate thirteen mob members held there. Scouting parties were sent out today to size up the situation. They reported an unusual number of Oklahoma University automobiles in Denison, the sister city a few miles north and and about 25 miles from the Oklahoma-Texas State line, but no indications of a renewed attack.

The machine guns set up at the corners of the jail building last night remained in place and well manned.

The sheriff was not replaced in control of the jail, but acted under direction of National Guardsmen.

Man Held on Suspicion.

A young man suspected of taking part in Friday's riots was apprehended today, the first arrest since the inauguration of martial law. He was questioned by Col. Davidson and orders were issued for the arrest of several other men.

The streets became so crowded with automobiles late today that guardsmen prohibited motorists from driving around the courthouse square. Forces in control of Sherman under Gov. Moody's declaration of martial law consist of 421 Texas national guardsmen and 10 Texas Rangers. The martial law declaration was the second during the three and one-half years of Gov. Moody's administration. The other was at Borger after the slaying of a county official.

Col. McGee said he had not checked the exact number of prisoners in the jail, but Sheriff Arthur Vaughn said late yesterday thirteen had been imprisoned. Officers last night reported two more had been arrested, making a total of sixteen held.

Names of thirteen appeared on the police blotter with notations of incendiary riot after them, but no such charge actually had been filed.

French Aviator Plans Brazil Hop for Today

SENATE BEGINS NAVY PACT STUDY TODAY

Members of U. S. Delegation to Appear First Before Committee.

STIMSON WILL EXPLAIN

(Associated Press.)

The Senate foreign relations committee wil lbegin examination of the London naval limitations treaty today in public hearings with Secretary Stimson, chief of the American delegation, explaining its details. The Secretary of State is prepared to go into an exhaustive explanation of the pact which binds the United States, Great Britain and Japan to a new basis of naval limitations.

Secretary of the Navy Adams, another of the American delegation, will follow Mr. Stimson before the committee. He will relate the effects of the treaty upon the Navy. He will be followed by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief naval adviser at the London parley.

The two American delegates will be supported before the foreign relations committee by two others of their delegation—Senators Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, and Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania.

Chairman Borah, of the committee, has announced no plans for the hearings beyond the attendance of these three witnesses. He is hopeful of completing consideration of the pact within a week or ten days and getting it before the Senate.

As soon as Secretaries Stimson and Adams have appeared before the foreign relations committee, Chairman Hale, of the Senate naval committee, will launch the hearings he has demanded to ascertain the full effect of the treaty upon America's naval plans.

Secretary Adams will be the first witness before the naval committee and Senator Hale is planning to get started by Tuesday on this hearing, which will run concurrently with the foreign relations hearings.

Awaiting the developments of these hearings, most of the Senate is withholding judgment on the naval treaty, although President Hoover is confident of its ratification.

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, who has demanded a full explanation of the pact, is a member of the foreign relations committee, and it appears likely that the American delegates will be subjected to considerable examination.

tee and was directed to reappear tomorrow.

Asserting that many important questions arise upon which the voters can not express their will by selection of candidates in elections, Cherrington added:

"On all these points in a representative government the people have not only a right but an absolute obligation to approach their elected representatives on legislative matters.

"It is too often found that the lobbyist representing special interests, backed by vast wealth, is received and regarded with peculiar respect while the man or woman who represents nothing more than a social welfare movement is viewed as irritating and troublesome.

"If 'lobbying' for the common good and public welfare should cease or if it should be regarded as a questionable procedure subjecting those engaged in it to bullying, to treatment such as is accorded suspected criminals or to insult because of their patriotic interest in the country's good, then representative government will cease to be a fact and become only a memory."

Dr. Cherrington said the designation of "lobbyist" might be a "badge of honor or a stigma of shame, depending upon whether the common good and the general welfare are advanced by the activities of the 'lobbyist' or whether special privilege or the interests of an antisocial institution are advanced by its activities."

"Proper 'lobbying,'" he added, "provides a method of continuous representation in fullest harmony with the American ideals of government.

"If proper 'lobbying' should be abandoned by patriotic citizens merely because the word has acquired a collateral invidious meaning, such as was given to it during the period when the liquor interests of the country secured their exploitation of antisocial appetites by preventing the passage of measures to control this lawless traffic, then this will largely cease to be 'a government of the people, by the people and for the people.'"

Curtis Urges Support Of City Beautiful Week

"Loyal support of all should be given to the District Commissioners, not only during the special week of May 19, which they have designated for civic beautification, but throughout the entire year," Vice President Curtis declared yesterday in speaking of the Washington celebration.

"Hundreds of thousands of visitors are drawn to Washington each year," he added. "The beauty of the city with its monumental buildings, national parks, and other objects of almost sacred historic interest is a stimulus to the patriotism of any true American.

"Upon us who have the privilege of residing within this national city rests a responsibility of maintaining its beauty at the highest possible standard."

FATAL TRAIN WRECK IS LAID TO VANDALS

Two Die as Cars Leave Rails at Mississippi Crossing; Reward Offered.

LATEST MYSTERY CRASH

Natchez, Miss., May 11 (A.P.).—The Planter, southbound passenger train number 15 of the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley Railroad early this morning fell prey to the depredations of vandals, in the opinion of railroad detectives, and two trainmen were killed.

The dead are B. W. Maddux, of New Orleans, engineer, and C. W. Baker, of near Vicksburg, Miss. The train left the rails at a crossing at Dean's Spur, two miles south of Harriston, Miss., and the engine, tender and three cars overturned.

Reports said that only one passenger was injured, Rudolph Vorbusch, of New Orleans, and his injuries were not considered serious.

Railroad detectives who worked on the case declared that the wrecking of the train, one of nearly a half dozen trains that have met with mishap while coursing through Mississippi in recent weeks, was due to malicious circumstances.

The railroad officials here said that heavy timbers had been spiked down on the tracks and the switch at the point had been jammed. They were seeking to connect the wrecking of several trains in one plot, with its purpose still a mystery.

It was announced here today that railroad officials had offered a reward of $10,000 for the arrest and conviction of the train wrecking culprit. Traffic was resumed late in the day.

MUSSOLINI EXALTS ITALY'S SEA HOPES

55,000 in Leghorn Cheer as Il Duce, on Tour, Speaks at Celebration.

1849 BATTLE RECALLED

Leghorn, Italy, May 11 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini today exalted Italy's maritime aspirations in a ten-minute speech full of patriotic sentiment, delivered before a crowd of 55,000 wildly cheering Livournese.

The celebration was in honor of Leghorn's heroic resistance in 1849 to the besieging Austrian army. The premier arrived here in the course of his tour of Tuscany.

"I want to say not only to you, but to the people beyond our frontiers, that we are not anxious to precipitate adventures," said Mussolini, "but if any one deceives himself so far as to think he can halt our onward march, he will find the whole Italian people in front of him. If our frontiers were threatened, there would be gathered one human mass—nay, a thunderbolt—launched against any and all comers."

Recalling that the day was the anniversary of Leghorn's battle with the Austrians, the Duce declared: "There is something unescapable, inevitable, in this march toward destiny of Fascist Italy, and nobody can halt it."

The Fascist cheer thundered from the listeners, and the premier turned to address them directly.

"Before our revolution, you not only had hunger for bread, but for glory. Livournese, the sea is your fortune!"

Mussolini was in his old-time vocal form, radiating vigor despite yesterday's exertions. He began the day at the naval academy, reviewing 400 midshipmen. Together with Minister of Communications Ciano, Rear Admiral Giuseppi Sirianni, minister of marine, and other notables, the Duce, who was garbed as an honorary corporal in the Fascist militia, stood through the open-air mass in the rain.

Showing every sign of deference and devotion, he saluted militarily like the others at the solemn moments of the service. He listened attentively to the chaplain's prayers at the conclusion. After the service he turned to the students and addressed them briefly.

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

IN all the far reaches of this republic there is no man more keenly aware than Judge Parker of the depressing fact that politics often is full of base ingratitude.

The judge spent his younger years in offering himself as a burnt sacrifice on the altar of party purification in North Carolina. He ran as a Republican for the attorney generalship of his State, knowing that his defeat was foreordained. He ran for the governorship under the same circumstances.

But he ran each time so that Tarheel Republicanism might say: "Behold us! We have made ourselves a lily-white organization. Persisting in this course, we shall attract to our banners a multitude of men who, although now voting the Democratic ticket, are Republicans at heart. They will come over to us because it can no longer be said that we are dominated by the Negro."

* * * *

NOW, having spent his time, his substance and his energy in vain but idealistic Republican reformation, Judge Parker finds himself propelled into the outer darkness by the iron boots of Republicans.

That is to say, he and a host of other Southerners have received an inescapable intimation that the G. O. P., as an organization, is not wildly enthusiastic about a purified and lily-white Republicanism in the South.

On the contrary, the Republican senators from the border States went out and deliberately, in the full view of the audience, prostrated themselves at the behest of Negro voters. Instead of rewarding a man who had given so lavishly to the lily-white movement, they threw him overboard and harkened submissively to the element he had fought.

* * * *

FOR the first time in our history a section of Republicanism north of the Mason and Dixon line has danced high, wide and handsome to the piping of the Negro.

"The result," a Democratic politician from North Carolina declared yesterday, "is that the cause of Republicanism in Tarheelia, and in the South as a whole, has been retarded at least ten years. Mr. Hoover has had the same experience as that which Mr. Taft had to endure.

"Like Taft, Hoover wanted to give recognition to men who had sought to elevate his party in the Southern States, and, like Taft, his party organization refused to uphold him."

* * * *

WHAT does this mean? It means that Southerners will believe that the G. O. P. is by no means enthusiastic about changing party conditions down there; that it has no profound objection to having Southern Republicanism remain a skeleton from which are plucked every four years the dry bones of convention delegates.

And that, if anybody should rush up to inquire, is a bad thing for the South, for that section would be vastly better off if it had a close and wholesome rivalry between the two major parties.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS HONORED IN SERVICES AT ARLINGTON

Davison declared, "but every soldier's mother must inevitably undergo the supreme sacrifice of parting. For every soldier's Calvary there are a hundred mothers' Gethsemanes. Nor is this parting solely a matter of soldiers and of the wars. It is the portion of every mother to see her children slack the bonds that time and usage and tender love have so deftly and intricately woven.

"The boys and girls become men and women," Mr. Davison added. "Marriages, the factory, the office, or the field set up within their bodies a rhythm that can not be denied. The world calls them and they must go out into it. They are flesh of the mother's flesh and yet that tissue must be cloven.

Form Aisle of Honor.

"The very blood that the mother has infused into their veins serves as a drum to whose throb they march away. And the mothers watch and help in their departure with the same smile and the same tears with which they see their sons go forth to war. Coupled with the love, the toil, the thoughtfulness and the selfishness of every mother there is a heroism that outshines the valor of son or daughter, in peace or war."

Through an aisle of honor, formed by Gold Star Mothers, representatives of patriotic and fraternal associations passed to place floral tributes on the tomb of the Unknown Solder.

In the amphitheater Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries extolled the motherhood of the country. "So long and in exact proportion as we revere mothers," he said, "so long and in that exact proportion shall we continue to grow and prosper."

Eulogizes Pioneer Mothers.

As nations rose and flourished, those that honored motherhood most rose highest and endured longest, he said. To the mothers of the early settlers of this country he accredited the conquests of colonies.

In these struggling colonies, he pointed out, home and mother became the shrine about which a great Nation has grown strong and worthy. American War Mothers who occupied the spacious amphitheater were described by him as mothers who, loving their sons, sent them to die if need be on the holy cross of battle, fighting for humanity.

"And yet today," he said, "within sight of these glorious sons who lie in the peace that only the brave may know, there come foreigners or foreign sympathizers who would admit all to the rights of citizenship, aliens who openly declare they would not fight, even to save the honor of their mothers."

Greeting by Mrs. McClure.

Taps were sounded as the war mothers stood at attention about the tomb.

Invocation was given by Col. Julian E. Yates, chief of Army chaplains. Mrs. Virgil McClure, national president of the American War Mothers, extended greeting of the organization.

Solos were given by Mrs. Lucio M. McQueary, who sang a selection from the "Pilgrims of Destiny;" Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, of Virginia, and Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, who sang "The Open Door," written by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge on the anniversary of the death of her son, Calvin, jr.

Members of Committee.

Capt. Sidney Key Evans, chief of Navy chaplains, pronounced benediction.

Mrs. McClure headed the committee in charge of services. She was assisted by Representative Katharine W. Langley, Mrs. M. C. O'Neill, Mrs. E. C. Wagner, Mrs. N. N. Nock, Mrs. W. W. Morrison, Mrs. Porter H. Dale, Mrs. Daniel Reed, Mrs. John C. Schafer, Mrs. Lucia R. Maxwell, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Admiral Charles F. Hughes, Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, Rear Admiral F. C. two and with his great-grandmother in Jackson Heights.

Then he shook hands with Dick James, also of Jackson Heights, and when Dick said he might try to get back his honors, Frank replied that he, too, would start right over again. Dozens of friends from Jackson Heights and Flushing were in the crowd of 5,000 that witnessed his landing.

When reporters finally separated him from the crowd, he described his flight as "perfect." Only once, on the East-West trip, when he scraped a telephone pole about 100 miles out of El Paso, was he really worried, he said.

Coming to New York he was a little bothered near Pittsburgh. "The smoke," he said, "made me lose my sense of direction, and the compass twirled around a couple of times."

Also at the field were representatives of the Brooklyn Junior Chamber of Commerce, who received a letter of greeting from the Los Angeles Junior Chamber, carried across the country by Frank.

He left Los Angeles Thursday at 7:33 a. m. (Pacific standard time), stopped at Yuma and Tucson, Ariz., and arrived at El Paso, Tex., that night. He took off from El Paso at 5:10 a. m. (Mountain standard time) Friday, stopped for fuel and lunch at Abilene, Tex., and landed at Tulsa, Okla., for the night. Saturday he left Tulsa at 8:10 a. m. (Central standard time), stopped at Springfield, Mo., and St. Louis, Mo., and arrived at Columbus, Ohio. Today he flew from Columbus to New York, stopping only at Newark, N. J.

LEGION SETS FRIDAY FOR POPPIES' SALE

"I can give no reason why my husband should go away. There is and has been no trouble at home. He has been in the Army for 15 years and has a good record," she said. "He was gassed in the World War and I fear he has lost his mind or met with foul play."

She stated that he is a well-known boxer and goes under the name of Billy Harris.

been Mexico's aviation idol. He took the place of the late Capt. Emilio Carranza, who was killed near Mount Holly, N. J., in July, 1928, while attempting a nonstop flight from New York to Mexico City.

Lieut. Rovirosa was well known in the Mexican army air corps. Several months ago he took part in an air race from Mexico City to Kansas City.

Col. Sidar was 27 years old, and a native of northern Mexico. Last year he made a good will flight through Central and South America, carrying personal messages from President Emilio Portes Gil to the chief executives of the countries he visited. He went as far south as Buenos Aires and returned to Mexico by plane. This achievement earned for him the title of "National Hero."

The Thirty-third Mexican Congress awarded him a special gold medal for "Merit and Patriotism," which was pinned on his breast May 7. A daring flier, he was known among his comrades in the air force as "Sidar, the madman."

During the Escobar Revolution last year Col. Sidar swooped down on a rebel column, spraying the enemy with bullets from his machine gun. Several rifle bullets perforated his plane, and his observer was killed.

Col. Sidar's plane was a powerful Emsco. Its body was painted in silver and gold. It was powered with a "Wasp" 400-horsepower engine, and was said to be the largest monoplane in the world. He purchased it at Los Angeles, Calif., with funds raised by popular subscription.

men's jobs, acting like men, and from now on I am going to treat them like men."

Of the original fourteen arrested by Federal raiders, four have been sent to prison and three are on two-year probation sentences. In passing sentences on the women, Federal Judge Frank A. Youmans declared:

"It is a very difficult matter for a judge to impose jail sentences on women because jails in this district are not suitable for them. However, women who persist in violation of the law must expect some punishment."

Two Trials Scheduled.

Mrs. Bernice Little is scheduled to appear for sentence in Federal court tomorrow, already having pleaded guilty. The cases of Mrs. A. G. Hatler, who has become a mother since her arrest, and Mrs. Eunice Smith, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident, are scheduled for trial. Mrs. Ruby Farris, mother of Mrs. Smith, also was due to appear for sentence, but was killed by a train on April 20.

Mrs. Caledonia Burns, 60, was arrested February 25, along with her youngest son, Glen, and nine others in a Hempstead County raid. She emphatically denied she was guilty, although Federal officers testified that they had purchased whisky from her.

lodged in the walls of the room, and a pile of dishes and silverware was lying on the floor near the door.

Woman Talks to Police.

At the hospital Mrs. Hibbard told police that she could not remember clearly all that had happened early in the afternoon, but said that her husband had come home in the morning and asked her for papers relating to his work at a grocery store on H street near Eighth street northwest, where he was employed. He had been quarreling, she said, and brandished the pistol which he had kept in a drawer in the room.

She could not remember what happened after he asked for the papers until he shot her, she told the police.

Hibbard denies all knowledge of the shooting. He was curt to police when they attempted to question him at the hospital, and refused to admit that he had fired the bullet, or whether there was any other than the woman with him at the time of the shooting. He told them, however, that he had lived in Cumberland, Md., for a short while, and had been in Washington about two months. They had been living at the Sixth street address since April 4, when they registered in a book kept for a record of the roomers.

Woman Is From Ohio.

The woman told doctors and police at the hospital that her people lived in Somerville, Ohio, and that they had lived in Hamilton, Ohio, before coming to Cumberland. Hibbard's parents, according to his story, live in Atlanta, Ga.

Other roomers at the Sixth street house all say that the couple never openly quarreled, and seemed very affectionate. They were together most of the time he was not working, they said, and they always spent the entire day together on Sundays.

Robert Colquitt, who lived next door to the house where the shooting took place, says that he heard five shots fired in the house, but at the time he was not sure whether the sounds were gunshots or not. Police estimated that it was more than 30 minutes after the shooting before Mrs. Robertson found them both lying on the blood-soaked bed.

Letters Foun in Room.

In the room where the shooting took place, police found several letters relating to a divorce between a "Mollie" Hibbard and Oscar Hibbard. Most of the letters were correspondence between a Washington attorney and the clerk of court of Hamilton County, Ky. Lieut. Kelly would not advance an opinion as to whether the woman in the hospital had deliberately given him the wrong name, or whether she was Hibbard's wife by a second marriage, but the correspondence was of recent date.

Attendants at the hospital say that the woman will probably die, the bullet having pierced her brain. The man's condition is not serious, and a police guard has been established over him.

Hibbard's attorney here in Washington will be questioned this morning in the hope that he may be able to partially clear up the mystery of the divorce and the "Mollie" and "Carrie" Hibbard. Hibbard will be questioned as soon as he has recovered from the shock of the wound.

Morris Howard, 40 years old, of Glen Carlin, Va., died last night in George Washington Hospital from a skull fracture received in a fall from a ladder Thursday.

Howard was climbing a ladder to paint a building at 743 Fourteenth street northwest when it toppled backward, throwing him to the pavement.

was drafted by a subcommittee after the full group discarded all the proposals for disposition of Muscle Shoals, and is along the line suggested by President Hoover in his annual message to Congress. Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, who said it would be given legislative preference, said he thought it would meet quick approval, although a minority report is to be filed.

The board of three would be authorized to hold office until December 1, 1931, and under the committee's plan Senate confirmation of their appointments would be required. In the awarding of leases, the measure would require that all members of the board and the President affix their signatures.

After the leases are negotiated, the measure provides for a permanent board of administration, consisting of the Secretaries of War, Agriculture and Commerce.

Besides requiring manufacture of 10,000 tons of fertilizer containing nitrogen within 3½ years after the leases are negotiated, the measure provides that the lessees construct Cove Creek Dam, in Tennessee, at a nestimated cost of $37,000,000.

In the report the committee pointed out that the measure requires "equitable allocation of surplus electric energy generated at Muscle Shoals among the States within economic transmission distance."

Recapture of the project in time of a national emergency for the manufacture of ammunition or upon failure of the lessee to fulfill obligations is provided, along with a provision that the State of Tennessee may recapture Cove Creek Dam after expiration of the 50-year license period.

The report recommended an annual rental which, at 4 per cent annually, would reimburse the United States for the appraised valuaton of the propertes. The ntrate plants would be excepted, however, as long as used for fertlzer producton.

Soviet Lecturer Hits Press in U. S.

Woman Tells Audience That Newspapers Spread False Information.

Seeking to enlist aid in purchasing farming implements and trying to acquaint American people with the so-called "five-year plan" which is being tried in Russia, the Friends of the Soviet Union last night held a meeting in the National Press Club Auditorium, with Miss Edith Rudquist, from the New York office of the association, as the principal lecturer.

Miss Rudquist accused the American press with spreading distorted information among the newspaper readers in this country, branding most of the Russian stories as "just plain lies."

"The Soviet is doing away with everything which is of no use," Miss Rudquist declared. "We were able to use the wealthy class of farmers for a while, because of the inability to produce enough necessities for the peasants. Now, we are able to produce our own foodstuffs and we are through with this class. We will have no rich farmers. So with the priests. We do not need them, and we will not havethem. They must go."

Three Chlidren Rescued As Fire Destroys Home

Three Negro children were saved yesterday from a burning home, in which they were locked, by Windom Young, colored, at Lyttonsville, near Silver Spring, Md. The house, the residence of Isaac Scott, colored, was destroyed before Silver Spring volunteer firemen could reach the settlement.

Neighbors heard the cries of the children and saw the flames while the parents were at church. Young broke through a dor and rescued the trio.

Open Door of Cab Knocks Four Over

Crowd in Front of Theater Scattered as Victims Are Felled.

A moving taxicab made an improvised bowling alley of the Loew's Palace Theater sidewalk about 7 o'clock last night, with a swinging door knocking over four pedestrians as human duckpins before scattering scores of others and creating a scene of mild excitement.

It all happened when a man and two girls hired a taxi operated by Arthur R. Kelly, 34 years old, of Indiana avenue near Second street northwest. As the cab moved by the playhouse, its flapping door bowled over Joe Rice, colored, 27 years old, the theater porter, who was leaning over close to the curb brushing away paper scraps.

Rice bumped into a passerby, toppling him against another man, who in falling to the sidewalk brought down still another victim. While the crowd speedily gave way, the cab driver was halted to close the door. None of the four men were hurt.

Public Affairs Institute Set For August 3

Latin American Envoys to Attend Round Table at Virginia U.

TWO diplomatic representatives from Latin-American countries, Senor Don Ricardo J. Alfaro, Minister of Panama, and Senor Don Adrian Recinos, Minister of Guatemala, will participate in the round table conferences and forum discussions at the Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia this summer.

Opening on August 3, and continuing through August 16, this will be the fourth annual session of a conference, which has roused national interest in past years and has been attended by distinguished men and women from all over the country. The Institute is modeled after the Institute of Politics, which meets at Williamstown, Mass., each summer, but is preeminent in its field, which is confined to the study of domestic problems of the United States, discussed in a broad and competent fashion by men actively engaged in administration and public affairs.

Both Mr. Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, and Mr. Julius H. Barnes, who seems to be the leader of the faction opposed to Mr. Legge's endeavor to put the middle man out of the running, are included among the promised speakers. And it is on the cards that there will be another round in the interesting duel between the two men, both close friends of President Hoover, which was started at the recent Chamber of Commerce convention. Dr. Dana G. Munro, of the Latin-American Division, Department of State, is another from Washington who will take part in the discussions.

Always in the spotlight of public favor is any endeavor put forth by the famous Byrd family, of Virginia. Hence the announcement that former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd will lead a round table sometime during the institute lends additional color to the schedule. Mr. Byrd will conduct a discussion on reorganization of State government, stressing reorganization as a whole, as it has been followed in Virginia, New Yor, Illinois and Massachusetts. As the Byrd family seems to possess a flair for organization, this phase of the institute gives promise of a considerable following.

With the summer season then at its height, questions on country life will prove pertinent and an excellent program based on various aspects of the agricultural problem will be led by Dr. C. J. Galpin, economist in charge, Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Others from Washington who will lend their experience to the success of the institute are Dr. Nathan Sinai, member of the research staff of the rural section of the Committee on the Cost of Medical Care, and Mr. H. W. Hochbaum, member of cooperative extension work, Department of Agriculture.

The institute was inaugurated several years ago as an experiment for advancing popular understanding of public questions and stimulating in the public mind increased interest in public affairs.

During the first year, 1927, its program was simple, consisting of seven round tables and eighteen addresses. Last year the small forum had mounted to 142 speakers. Nearly a thousand members and registered guests from nearly all the States, from Spain, Porto Rico, Peru and far-flung areas participated last year in the discussions. It is a matter of pride to the first small handful of educators that today within the shadow of Monticello and the gateway to the South there has been established a forum for the discussion of national problems with a view to the promotion of liberalism and tolerance in the consideration of political and other questions provoking argument among men in public life.

Ball to Close State Groups' Winter Season

Representatives From 48 Societies Will Take Part in Function.

With representatives from 48 States contributing to the success of the All-States ball, which will take place at the Willard Thursday evening, the interest of a far-flung territory is focussed on the party which reflects the socially constructive progress made by the societies in Washington. It marks the close of the formal entertainments that have brought together various State groups through the winter. Residents in Washington who are not members of the societies will be welcomed, thus making the ball entirely representative.

Included in the membership of the committees are members of Congress and of official society, who are working under the general direction of Miss Jessie Dell, chairman.

Her committee aids include Mr. John D. Machen, Alabama, Representative Claude Fuller, Arkansas; Maj. Charles William Freeman, California; Dr. Charles E. Morganston, Connecticut; Representative Robert G. Houston, Delaware; Representative William W. Larsen, Georgia; Mr. George Osmond Hyde, Idaho; Representative Harry C. Canfield, Indiana; Mr. Karl S. Hoffman, Iowa; Mr. E. F. Finney, Kansas.

Esterly, Pennsylvania; Mr. Charles Burke, South Dakota; Mr. Robert Barker, Tennessee; Mr. J. Elton Billings, Utah; Representative Eugene Black, Texas; Mr. Thomas Settle, Virginia, and former Gov. E. Mr. and Mrs. William L. Morris accompanied by their daughter, Miss Jane Morris, and Miss Mary Grubo Smith are spending some time at the Powhatan.

Vipivoce Toy Symphony Presents Program.

The Vipivoce Toy Symphony, composed of young boys and girls, gave a lively program in the Dupont Circle studios of Miss Clara Hill on the last day of music week. Miss Frances Gutelius led the little orchestra in a program beginning with the Haydn Toy Symphony, which was the only "orchestrated" music used, the balance of the program being free improvisations on the part of the children and their leader with the toy instruments and their voices, which were heard in charming words set to the piano numbers.

The first of these was the Bach "Musette," played by 5-year-old Home McAllister; then the Schubert "Scherzo," with Walter Swank at the piano. A novelty was introduced by Anne and Ellery Stowell on the recorders they brought from England last year. Shakespeare mentions this almost obsolete wood-wind instrument in "Hamlet." Anne and Ellery played the "Melody in F," with Miss Gutelius at the piano. The other "symphonic" numbers were Barbara Bolling's "Scarf Dance," by Chaminade, and Walter Swank's spirited interpretation of Scharwenka's "Polish Dance." Miss Kathryn Latimer, a charter member of the Vipivoce Club, who recently made her debut in the Pianist's Club, played "The King's Hunting Jig," by Dr. John Bull.

This musical program was given in conjunction with an exhibition of sculpture, etchings and paintings by the students of the Hill School of Art. The personnel of the orchestra was Barbara Bolling, Betty Barnhill, Lucia Ellis, Yvonne Forrest, Home and Adeline McAllister, Karlian Meyer, Janet O'Leary, Ellery and Anne Stowell, Mary and Julia Warner, Gladys and Gertrude Cowsill, Albert Williams, Walter and Lawrence Swank and Margaret Yanagita.

The members of the Washington Kiwanis Club, the president, Mr. James B. Edmunds; the vice presidents, Mr. Merritt O. Chance and Mr Eugene R. Woodson; the District trustee, Mr. Radford Moses, and the secretary, Mr. George H. Winslow, will entertain the women of the club membership at a luncheon at the Washington Hotel on Thursday at 12:30 o'clock. An entertainment will follow.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Patterson, of Chicopee Falls, Mass., were week-end guests at the Dodge Hotel.

Mrs. S. D. Wingate, of Seattle, Wash., is at the Dodge Hotel for several days.

Sleep

UTTER relaxation—perfect rest is even more important than the number of hours you sleep. No one can rest properly on a mattress that sags—that keeps muscles tense and tired.

A sagging mattress need not be thrown away. The material inside can be used to make a charming new mattress. This inside is the costly part, that does not wear out, but does pack and become uncomfortable.

Germs and dirt are certain to collect in old mattresses. Dust gets in where you cannot clean, but in our electric oven all germs are destroyed—the valuable felt or hair cleansed—and combed, then put into charming brand-new ticking of your selection. The cost is only $4 to $9.

Let our representative call with a booklet of attractive tickings from which you may select the pattern you prefer. Satisfaction guaranteed.

ENGINEERS HIT DILL PATENT MEASURE

Inventive Genius to Suffer if Bill Is Enacted, the Council Avers.

BOARD TO GET REPORT

Inventive genius in America will suffer, industries will be slower to adopt new ideas, and the public will be loser if the bill sponsored by Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, relating to suits for infringments of patents is enacted, a report of the American Engineer Council committee on patents declares.

The report will be submitted to the administrative board of the council today at the opening session of a two-day meeting at the Mayflower Hotel by E. J. Prindle, of New York, chairman, who is a former president of the New York Patent Law Association.

The Dill bill aims to provide safeguards in infringement suits against acts in restraint of trade or in violation of the antitrust laws. The engineers contend, however, that violation by a patent owner of a law regulating business should not protect a defendant in his own use of an invention without proper compensation to the owner.

Numerous other recommendations concerning airports, flood control, power, communications, a national system of express motorways, immigration, mobilization of forces in time of war, and regulation of interstate motor transportation will be considered at the meeting.

Changes in the traffic system, involving street signs, signals, and markings in cities throughout the country will also be considered by the board. The governing body of the council represents 30 national and local engineering societies with a membership of 60,000.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

"The Rivals," a farcical comedy in three acts by Richard Brinsley Sheridan. Staged by Harrison Grey Fiske. DiDirection A. L. Erlanger and George C. Tyler.

THE CAST:

Sir Anthony Absolute.... John Craig
Capt. Jack Absolute.... Rollo Peters
Faulkland ..... Pedro de Cordoba
Bob Acres ..... James T. Powers
Sir Lucius O'Trigger.... Andrew Mack
Fag ..... Edward Powell
David ..... George Tawde
Thomas ..... Dann Malloy
Mrs. Malaprop ..... Mrs. Fiske
Lydia Languish .... Margery Maude
Julia Melville ..... Betty Linley
Lucy ..... Georgette Cohan

Just for the night, Mr. George C. Tyler sent his all-star cast into the National last evening in a revival of Sheridan's delightful comedy, "The Rivals." It was, as the saying is and was, a one-night stand—and we can stand a night like this any time, any place.

Mrs. Fiske was again "malaproping" all over the premises with her own instigations; and, of course, that meant much merriment, what with her "you go first, we will precede you," and "you said the gentleman was 'persona au gratin,'" or words to that effect.

Then, there was the inimitable Jimmy Powers as Bob Acres—a clown of the first water, a comic of comics, with enough buffoonery to fill out any man's comedy. Certainly even the revered Sheridan must have been improved upon by the right honorable James T. Powers, a comedian who knows where to place his laughs.

As a matter of fact, they have taken some liberties with this script—but only in a bigger and better way. Whenever Mr. Tyler elects to pass this way again with his starred aggregation the house is his; a capacity audience always standing in abeyance. It was this way last night, a full house greeting the players.

High honors, of course, fell to Mrs. Fiske and James Powers; but there was that complete balance furnished by the rest of the cast—and Andrew Mack, in particular, came off handsomely as a Sir Lucius O'Trigger cut according to the pattern.

In the smal part of David, servant to the country gentleman, Bob Acres, George Tawde did magnificently—and won a full round of aplause on his own merit. In fact, this is one of the rare bits in the play. Mr. Tawde manages to marshal al ithe humor in the situations, particularly those leading up to the dueliing scene, where poor old Bob Acres nearly passes out—the finest comedy contribution from the Powers' repertory.

As for the young loves and the blades—these were exceedingly well done by Margery Maude as Lydia Languish; by Betty Linley, as Julia Melville, Roll Peters, a dashing Capt. Jack Absolute, and Pedro de Cordoba as the wavering Faulkland. John Craig played the father of Capt. Jack—and in robust fashion.

Pity 'tis the curtain has to fall on these performances. Word comes that the one-night stand in Washington was the final appearance of the cast for this season.

GAYETY

That shapely beauty, Lola Pierce, was thought to have knocked Gayety goers out last week, but yesterday it appeared as though Lola in her opening week was either teasing or acquainting herself with the audience, for yesterday she demonstrated her exceptional talent and looked like the best thing Jimmy Lake has brought to the Gayety this season. Leading several elaborate ensemble numbers, this dazzling brunette gathered an abundance of favor. The trio of comics, Goldie, Fryer and Devine, fully merit the applause rendered them, working each scene for laughter and applause. That petite blonde, "Tiny Huff," who is gaining a number of friends here with her dynamic dancing and personality, received many encores. Babe Almond proved that her clever work of last week was not a flash, and danced her way to much favor. Syde Rankin, beautiful blonde, covered her work with action and was present in numerous scenes. Lo Petel, neatly attired straight man, and Ryan, classy stepper, and those handsome 20 hard-working chorines give A La Carte Girls an atmosphere that fulfills popular Jimmy Lake's promise of bigger and better burlesque. Numerous burlesque managers visited the Gayety last week to view the cast and gaze upon the chorus, which is heralded as burlesque's best. Auction, wrestling and amateur nights will be held this week, with "Hinda" Wassau present next week.

Park Concert Season Will Open This Week

The park summer concert season will commence tomorrow night, according to an announcement yesterday by Col. U. S. Grant 3d., director of Public Buildings and Public Parks. Hours for the concerts will be from 7:30 until 9 o'clock in the evening.

The schedule for this week will be tomorrow night at Chevy Chase Circle, the Navy Band playing; Wednesday night in the Sylvan Theater, with the Army Band, and also Thursday night at the Slyvan, the Marine Band playing. On Friday night the Community Civic Band will play at Washington Circle, Pennsylvania avenue and Twenty-third streets northwest.

Boy, 9, Quits His Home To Make Way in World

William F. Amam, 9 years old, of 3500 Fourteenth street northwest, decided to make his own way in the world and penned a note yesterday to his parents to that effect.

The boy, when he disappeared from home, wore a tan sweater, tan shoes and knickers. District police were asked by Mrs. William Amam, mother of the boy, to conduct a search for him.

Roumanian Police Head Is Sentenced as Spy

THE PRIZE FOR A SONG: EVE

Hans Sachs' finest song helped Walter win a singing contest, and the hand of Pogner's lovely daughter, Eve. We all know the story from Wagner's Meistersinger, but if we go to Nuremberg we can see the house and courtyard where Sachs lived, and the Meistersinger Hall. We can pay homage to Albrecht Duerer in his house, unchanged for centuries. And Nuremberg is only one of Germany's many historic cities which display the many-hued romance of the past, and the vivid gaiety of modern life, screened by a natural loveliness of river, field, and mountain. Modern comfort, moderate prices, and a hearty welcome, with no visé charge in Golden Germany.

Hot water, quickly flowing, luxuriously hot, improves the worst of pre-breakfast grouches. Cold water baths refresh your skin, but hot water both refreshes it and washes it clean.

Hot water gives your razor a chance, it does 60 per cent of the work of laundering and 75 per cent of the work of dishwashing.

You Can't Be Clean Without HOT WATER

It's so easy to have hot water with an automatic water heater that none need be without it.

An automatic heater is always ready to serve you—merely a turn of the faucet starts a plentiful supply of clean, pure water—STEAMING HOT.

MR. ROBERTS' NOMINATION.

The so-called "liberals" who trembled for the security of human rights when Charles E. Hughes and John J. Parker were proposed for the Supreme Court bench are singing a different tune in dealing with the nomination of Owen J. Roberts. While they acknowledge that he is as "conservative" as either Chief Justice Hughes or Judge Parker, they explain their failure to attack him by saying that he has a "flexible mind," and is "open to conviction."

No combination of disgruntled factions nas been formed to defeat Mr. Roberts. A few votes may be cast against his confirmation, but it seems probable that he will be confirmed by a large vote. The suggestion that he might be opposed by fanatical drys seems to be without basis of fact. He holds the same opinion in regard to the eighteenth amendment as that held by Senator Borah; but even if they differed, Mr. Borah has no stomach for a fight against Mr. Roberts. The public condemnation of the unjust attack upon Judge Parker is still ringing in the country's press. The senators who defeated Judge Parker have their action to explain to their constituencies, and evidently they are not eager to add to their troubles by making another attempt to sacrifice an honorable man.

The nomination of Mr. Roberts has been hailed with approval throughout the country. The press reflects public opinion by avoiding partisanship in discussing Mr. Roberts. The fact that he is a Republican is not objectionable to the Democratic press, since it is borne in mind that he is appointed to succeed a Republican. President Hoover is fully expected to name a Democratic justice in due season, and if he should be called upon to fill more vacancies it can not be doubted that he will avoid partisanship.

The Senate can do much to reestablish itself in public esteem by promptly confirming Mr. Roberts. Senators who find it impossible to vote for him can state their side of the case without mudslinging. The people have been disgusted by some of the speeches made against Chief Justice Hughes and Judge Parker, and have rightly interpreted these speeches as reckless and reprehensible assaults upon the judiciary itself. Senators should have kept themselves above such tactics. They merely damaged themselves by descending to misrepresentation and abuse. They will find it difficult to regain the public respect that they have forfeited. The President wisely refrained from public criticism of these senators, and in turn has increased public confidence in his steadfastness and prudence. As for the Supreme Court, it remains proof against all assaults by politicians, secure in the esteem of the people. Judge Parker, the victim of vile abuse and injustice, has played the part of a man. He has more friends and admirers than ever before.

As soon as possible the Senate should close the chapter of incidents connected with the Supreme Court vacancy by confirming Owen J. Roberts. The prospect that a brilliant, courageous and high-minded jurist is to take his place on the Supreme Court bench tends to restore good feeling in all quarters.

WASHINGTON ALLEYS.

Representative Bowman, of West Virginia, has brought to the attention of Washington a disagreeable situation that ought to be cleared up without delay. In his survey of courts and alleys in Washington's slums Mr. Bowman was astounded that "such conditions could exist in a civilized community." The squalor of which he speaks is not known to the majority of residents or visitors of the Capital City, but it is nevertheless a disgrace.

Poverty breeds more poverty, and out of the general result come disease, ignorance, immorality, feeble-mindedness and all varieties of crime. It will require many years to realize that vision of President Hoover—the abolition of poverty—if indeed that is ever possible. But there is no excuse for human beings in this civilized age living in filth, stench and wretchedness. Cleanliness is not expensive, and the most humble family can afford to keep its premises respectable. Where individual initiative is not sufficient to provide a decent environment, public authority should impose such restrictions as will protect the community health and morals.

Representative Bowman's bill calling for a ten-year alley-closing program deserves attention. It is a form of benevolence to force people living in such squalor to improve their environment. The Capital City should make a special effort to heal these infectious sores in its communal body. It is highly desirable that these conditions be given attention, both by the health department and by Congress.

ITALY'S NATIONAL POLICY.

Foreign Minister Grandi's speech to the Chamber of Deputies in Rome on Friday was admirable in tone and scope. He set forth Italy's policy with clearness and without possibility of offense to other nations. This policy is one of neighborly accord with France on naval armament, cooperation with all the powers for reduction as well as limitation of navies, good will toward Great Britain and America in their efforts to harmonize differences, and willingness to make sacrifices for the sake of promoting the welfare of the Balkan peoples.

Although Italy is the most vulnerable of all the great naval powers, whether considered from the economic, geographic, or strategic point of view, the nation is manfully meeting the situation that confronts it, with a desire to maintain cordial relations with France on a basis of entire equality. Mr. Grandi referred to the building program recently adopted, calling for the laying down of 29 war craft, and stated that this was not an extension of original plans. Italy, he said, was neither bellicose nor vacillating in its international policy. It had won its place in the hierarchy of nations, and intended to hold that place. Throughout his remarks he laid emphasis upon the Italian belief that the peace and security of Europe depended upon equality of naval strength and mutual reduction of armament.

Italy's course during the London conference was consistent throughout. That nation stood for reduction of armament, conditioned always upon Italian equality with any other continental power. It is impossible logically to combat this position while accepting the thesis of the equality of sovereignty. Italy's case is made stronger, however, by reason of the vulnerability of her position and her dependence upon foreign supplies. Her navy must be sufficiently strong to defend her extended coastline and to keep open the communications upon which her life depends. No American, looking impartially at Italy's position, can fail to approve the decision of the Mussolini government to build a navy that will make the national defense secure. This decision is proof of national vigor and self-respect, and can not be regarded as a menace to any other nation.

The knotty problem of Franco-Italian naval parity can be solved by patient and friendly exchanges between the two governments. Italy's disposition to befriend the Balkan countries ought to go far toward allaying French apprehensions by demonstrating that the Mussolini government hopes for and will strive for a continuance and consolidation of peace throughout the Mediterranean region. Parity of naval forces should be a normal outcome of confidence on both sides. The frank exposition of Italy's policy by Foreign Minister Grandi may be expected to invite a sympathetic response from France.

PRISON REFORM.

Sanford Bates, superintendent of Federal prisons, ascribes the unrest that prevails generally in penitentiaries and penal institutions to the campaign of force that society has carried on against criminals in recent years. Speaking before the Congress on Mental Hygiene, he described the interval between 1900 and 1920 as the humanitarian period. In it the juvenile court, the parole system and the indeterminate sentence were born. But there was a reaction from humanitarianism. Society began tightening paroles, lengthening sentences and attacking probation. "Crime," he said, "having itself assumed a warlike appearance, instead of being scared off by the hostile attitude of society, increased in intensity. The culmination came with the terrible prison riots of last year."

Mr. Bates does not explain the phrase: "Crime having itself assumed a warlike appearance." Why did society undergo a reaction from the humanitarian period? Was it not because crime merely abused the privileges granted by humanitarianism? Is not the present-day crime wave the price which society has been called upon to pay for coddling criminals between 1900 and 1920?

"The prison of the future," says Mr. Bates, "will be of strong construction where strength is needed, but it will give prominent place to the hospital, the laboratory, the school, the mental hygiene clinic and the workshop. It will not be an asylum or a place of amusement or a dungeon. It will be clean and teach cleanliness. It will be busy and teach industry. It will be stern and teach discipline." The new institutions for Federal prisoners are being planned along these lines.

It is a wise policy that seeks to regenerate criminals rather than merely to punish them. But the question must always be present: Is it possible to regenerate the majority of those who stray from lawful paths? There are, no doubt, criminals who become lawless because of inability to adjust themselves to the restraint that society imposes upon all. But penology has not yet proved that the majority of criminals are of this type, and experience seems to testify that most criminals are lawless by choice. Cleanliness, industry and discipline can not always be taught.

While the prison of the future is being built, what is society to do with its criminals? The Department of Justice is removing prisoners from overcrowded penitentiaries to unused barracks in Army posts. This is a good move. But the States can not make use of such facilities, and the prison population is largely confined to State institutions. The situation being what it is, more strict discipline is a necessity in keeping prisoners under control. When crime becomes "warlike" it must be put down by force.

SMUGGLING OF ALIENS.

A more effective patrol of the borders and ports, for the purpose of preventing the smuggling of aliens and excluding those who are not entitled to enter, is necessary for the public protection. Crime is the natural consequence of unlawful entry by aliens. They are criminals from the beginning, and often they are Communists and other dangerous types. Once inside the country it is difficult to detect them, and in some cases impossible to deport them. The Soviet government refuses to permit the return of deportees to Russia. The Immigration Bureau is at a loss to know how to dispose of them.

The failure to provide for the registration of aliens in the United States is a great handicap to satisfactory administration of the immigration laws. Congress should enact a registration bill. Registration is opposed by some elements which seem to fear that a system of espionage would be set up, harassing law-abiding aliens and subjecting them to possible deportation. This could not occur under a law suitably and properly drawn. No alien lawfully entitled to remain in the country, and obedient to its laws, would be affected by registration, except beneficially. His registration card would be a protection against false charges against him. Only the criminal alien need fear a registration system—and all of this class should be made to fear it.

A NATION ENSLAVED

From the Detroit News.

Thanks most largely to the researches and writings of Philip Adler of the Detroit News staff, many people here have secured an inkling of the horrors attending the business of industrializing a nation by force.

When a man of Mr. Adler's sound education and high integrity, born in Russia and speaking the language, tells us what he found and what he saw on his recent prolonged visit to Russia, we at least make a start at understanding. When such a man tells us that the billions the Soviet government is expending are raised by grinding 150,000,000 people into abject poverty and unbelievable misery, that year after year the fruits of the labor of all these millions are virtually confiscated, then we begin to comprehend how it is that the radicals from England, from our own country and from all other countries return so profoundly disillusioned from a visit to Russia. Then we begin to appreciate the heart-wringing narratives of such of the farmers and workingmen as have managed to escape from Russia.

An enormous standing army kept on the alert to suppress uprisings, the most comprehensive spy system ever maintained on this earth and reaching into the most remote parts of Russia, ruthless prosecutions and executions, beggars everywhere, and bands of homeless boys wandering about in every section of Russia are all a concomitant and inevitable part of the picture.

It is a land of anguish.

Nor is the horror of it at all relieved if we grant the sincerity of the theorists who have seized and who thus manhandle this people. Concede that they believe they will some day turn Russia into happyland, and still, what have you? Apply the lesson to your own land. To our own United States. Could any possible set of circumstances justify a government at Washington in robbing all the people of home and hope and faith and substance for the purpose of rolling up billions in Washington with which to build stupendous public works on the theory that at some distant day, somehow, the people were to be made happier?

The truth is that Russia is paying in blood and tears even as it did under Ivan the Terrible. For the Soviet apostles of the socialistic teachings of Marx and Lassalle are close adherents to the methods of Ivan.

The $33,000,000,000 represents but a small part of the cost of Russia's industrialization program. In order to raise this sum, the Russian government compels its 125,000,000 farmers to sell to the state every product of their farms, with Soviet agents prescribing the quality, quantity and price of the goods to be presented by the farmers. Part of the goods, virtually confiscated from the farmers, is exchanged abroad for machinery for the industrialization program. Part of it is sold at a profit to the cities, where the proletariat, through the Communistic dictatorship, maintains its supremacy over the farmers.

In order to prevent an uprising of the farmers, the government maintains the Red Army, one of the most powerful military systems in the world; the G. P. M., a system of espionage even more powerful than the army, and its vast coterie of politicians and bureaucrats—all nonproductive bodies, living off the farmer. Criticism of this system is punishable by exile, if not by death. Twelve years after the revolution and seven years after Russia's civil war, Russia's population of 150,000,000 still lives in a state of appalling misery; black bread is rationed out to the Soviet citizens on government books; the books are issued to loyal supporters of the dictatorship only, and countless nameless graves and 100,000 living exiles to the marshes of Siberia, to the burning sands of Kazakstan and to the hyperborean regions of the Solovetzy Island in the White Sea are a continuous threat to those who would dare raise their voice against the dictatorship.

The industrial achievements of the Soviet government, as they are carried out, no doubt will arouse the admiration of the followers of Stalin, but will hardly arouse a feeling of envy among any enlightened democratic people or create an attempt at emulation in any representative republican government, among people who are aware of the price the Russian people are paying for them. Any nation could accomplish as much, if not more, in as short a time, by adopting the methods of the Soviet. But no sane government will. No self-respecting people would submit to a government that dared.

HELPFUL OWLS.

Sixteen species of owls inhabit North America, with several additional geographic forms. The great horned owl, Bubo virginianus, is widespread, ranging from the tropical forests to the limit of tree growth in the north. Scarcely inferior in size to the famed eagle owl of Europe, it is considered to be our most powerful species. In the far north, says Nature Magazine, its usual prey is the varying hare, and it thus aids the lynx and other furred predators in reducing the legions that without these checks, and periodic diseases, must long ago have devastated our continent. In many a rough western canyon the demands of a brood of downy great horned owls, snug in their nursery on cliff or ancient tree, furnish the urge that results in the death of dozens of pocket gophers or ground squirrels that are the foes of the rancher.

MOTHER.

They said he was a careless lad
In him they saw no good;
His mother smiled, and said her child
Was oft misunderstood.

He failed in school. The teachers all
Denounced him as a dunce.
His mother brave, this reason gave:
"He had a fever once."

Impatient strangers turned him off,
Friends left him when betrayed;
Through all things ill, his mother still
Waited and hoped and prayed.

Though broken promises destroyed
The faith of others all,
With help she ran unto the man
Whene'er she heard him call.

Friends oft divide, and pride forgets
The ones it climbs above,
But there's no sin man wallows in
Can change a mother's love.

Teach the Boy to Despise Cheats, and the Man Won't Need a Bond.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICA'S greatest and most costly mistake consists in trying to teach the old dog new tricks.

The potter's failure to shape his ware while the clay is soft accounts for every problem that now baffles and dismays our civilization.

There are people doomed by nature to burden and torment society. Generations of disease and vice and imbecility have brought them so near the level of beasts that no course of training could make them good citizens.

There is another class whose members inherit fine traditions, keen minds and pride of caste, and these absorb from their environment a standard of ethics and a taste for decency that keep them clean without the aid of law or public opinion.

One class is beyond redemption, the other beyond need of assistance.

But neither class is large, and between the two is the great mass of common people—perhaps 90 per cent of the population—whose character and destiny are determined by circumstance.

Children of this class, normal in mind and body, are putty in the hands of their trainers.

An orphan boy, adopted by people who give him the best of ethical and academic training, becomes a great and good man; while his twin and equal, adopted by stupid and dishonest people and denied opportunity to develop his possibilities, becomes a rogue or a nobody.

In short, the children of this great, normal, average middle class can be transformed into industrious, intelligent and honorable citizens who will demand and then obey sane and righteous laws.

Why, then, do so many of them develop into sorry citizens whose ignorance, narrow prejudice, vice, folly and crime retard civilization?

Because their parents, themselves improperly trained, have neither the sense of duty nor the skill required to train children well.

Here, then, is government's greatest opportunity and greatest obligation.

Has government any higher duty than that of developing its future citizens?

Can government find any task more profitable than that of transforming into good citizens those who might become bad citizens?

Government spends millions to teach farmers how to improve and care for their live stock.

Is the business of training children less important?

Why spend millions to punish and "redeem" men when it would cost much less to develop decent citizens who won't need redemption?

Why depend on laws and police and courts to protect society from enemies when it is easier and cheaper to transform potential enemies into friends?

Is a home for fallen girls better than a home that trains girls not to fall?

THE GREAT CLUB SANDWICH INQUIRY.

("House Debates Club Sandwiches. Fiery Words Fly Over 70-Cent Charge as House Restaurant Deficit Comes Up."—Headline.)

Rep. Underhill (defending congressional restaurant and exhibiting a club sandwich)—I ask you to observe this sandwich. Note the slice of chicken . . .

Voice—Where?

Rep. Underhill (a little uncertainly)—Right there between the two pieces of toast.

Other Voices—We don't see it.

Rep. Underhill (examining the club sandwich closely)—That's funny . . . I can't see it myself now. It must be my glasses.

Rep. Cooper—Glasses nothing! Only an optimist ever hopes to see the slice of chicken in a club sandwich.

Rep. Underhill (changing the subject)—Well, let us forget the chicken for the nonce and . . .

Voice—That's the only thing to do.

* * * *

Rep. Underhill (continuing)—For the nonce and note the two slices of bacon, the ample . . .

Rep. Britten—I see only one slice of bacon.

Rep. Underhill—Well, maybe you're right. But observe the quantity and quality of the tomato! Where, except in the congressional restaurant, is the steward as liberal with his tomatoes?

Rep. Bloom—That's the trouble with club sandwiches; they're always full of tomatoes, and pretty green ones at that.

Rep. Underhill—Does the gentleman wish to go on record as opposed to tomatoes?

Rep. Bloom—I yield to no man in my love and respect for that grand and glorious product of the great American farm, that unimpeachable vegetable, that unsurpassed . . .

Speaker of the House—I think the gentleman's attitude toward the tomato is well known.

Rep. Purnell—The gentleman from New York has made himself plain with respect to the raw tomato sliced, but how does he stand on boiled tomatoes?

Rep. Warren—The question is not before this august body. Who ever heard of boiled tomatoes in club sandwiches?

Rep. Bloom—I heard of them once in the Bronx.

Rep. Underhill—Does the tomato—beg pardon—does the gentleman yield? I take it that he does. Let me get on with my story. Observe the lettuce in this club sandwich!

Rep. Wingo—It's pretty terrible, if you ask me.

Rep. Underwood—You're not even looking at it.

Rep. Wingo—It is unnecessary to look at it. Everybody knows that the lettuce in club sandwiches is awful. And look at the pickle!

Rep. Underwood—What's wrong with the pickle?

Rep. Wingo—Look at it and see for yourself.

Rep. Underwood—Am I supposed to devote my time to looking at pickles?

Rep. Wingo—You started this discussion; I didn't. Personally I am more interested in mayonnaise.

Rep. Underwood—That remark is un-American and I resent it. I shall resent it the rest of my days. Does the gentleman apologize?

Rep. Wingo—I appeal to the Speaker.

Speaker—For what?

Rep. Wingo—For a vote of confidence in the old-fashioned order of ham and eggs as opposed to the club sandwich.

Speaker (summarily)—Recess until 3 p. m. And at that time I want all the facts on the lack of strawberries in strawberry shortcake.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Spirited Competition Between Wets and Drys for the Flapdoodle Prize—Mental Hygienists Too Late.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With the political bedlam of extreme wets and extreme drys showing no signs of a let up, it looks as if the mental-hygiene specialists didn't begin their campaign for national sanity a bit too soon.

No sooner had F. Scott McBride declared that the Antisaloon League was "born of God and will fight on while He leads," when the white-collar wets meet at the Mayflower Hotel banquet for a personal-liberty symposium.

In lieu of cocktails they put pep in their appetites by calling prohibition "a cancer" in our national life, "the worst curse since human slavery," "unchristian and ungodlike."

Like the stern old Jeremiah that he is, Senator Bruce declared that prohibition is a "moral disaster," while a member of the National Temperance League, one Edward A. Alexander, of New York, likened the present condition to "the days when the American colonies were ruled by an unjust English king."

In the true spirit of '76 Charles A. Wildell, editor of the Chicago Liberal, followed this up with a wet promise to "dethrone the distatorship of intolerance in Washington." Speaking of McBride's sanctification of the Antisaloon League, in righteous wrath he said, "These are the most blasphemous words that ever came from man or devil."

But probably the most courageous and inspiring utterance of the banquet was that of Representative Melvin J. Maas, of Minnesota: "Thank God, America has not accepted prohibition, and it never will."

Surely observers from other countries must be amused as well as instructed by the contest of our wets and drys for the great American world championship flapdoodle belt.

PLAIN CITIZEN.

Women Would Make Better Municipal Housekeepers, Says Roger Bates.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Says the Christian Science Monitor: "There are certain to be more women senators and who is to say that the time is far distant when a woman will be presiding in the White House." Not I, for one. When that time comes we will have women Commissioners for the District. Strange as it seems, under their rule administration will be simplified. Consider the efficient housewife. Is there much obstructive palaver among conflicting authorities when she gets ready to clean house? Not much! Before many words can be wasted she has the mop, the broom and the dusting brush in action, and the job is done.

At first a board of women commissioners might hesitate until they had taught Congress a thing or two in regard to common sense lawmaking for Washington. Think of a woman board resting easy while one city department makes a traffic rule and refers it to another department, which in its turn hands it on to the board with an opinion, said opinion being mixed up with the opinions of business and other organizations, legal authorities and plain citizens; simplified traffic control being in the meantime definitely detoured.

Women would not make such a mess of municipal housekeeping.

J. ROGER BATES.

Teaching by Example Is Best Method of Character Training.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Board of Education committee on public school character training in a recent report says that in present methods there is "a real neglect of traits that make for personal integrity." They are thinking, of course, of direct training. Along that line the plan on which they are at work may do much good when introduced in the schools next fall. But my idea is that indirect character education is more important.

The attribute of imitation is marked in the young. Up to near the age of maturity the character of children for better or for worse is mostly developed by force of example. In the home this influence is all-powerful. If it is bad, precept piled on precept and sermon on sermon can have but a slight effect against it during adolescence.

In the school, therefore, of most importance is the character of the teachers themselves. The indirect influence of dignity, fairness and geniality on the part of a teacher will work wonders. And the greatest of these is geniality. Nothing can quite take the place of the sympathetic smile as a means by which to stir the better nature and arouse the self-respect of a moody, backward, or seemingly intractable child.

100,000 SEE CLOSING OF EUCHARIST RITES

Sun Blazes Down on Mass Which Ends Congress at Carthage.

MOSLEMS, JEWS ATTEND

Carthage, Tunisia, May 11 (A.P.).—The greatest multitude in the history of Carthage since ancient days gathered in this historic site of Christianity today for the closing ceremonies of the thirtieth Eucharistic Congress of the Roman Catholic Church.

Christians, Moslems and Jews, flocking in from the nearby city of Tunis, joined the thousands of foreign pilgrims here since the sessions opened on Wednesday. They came to see—not all could hear—a pontifical mass celebrated by Cardinal Lepicier, papal legate, and a great procession in the afternoon.

At least 100,000 persons swarmed about the ruins of St. Cyprien Church for the pontifical mass. Five thousand French troops formed lines around the ancient walls and pillars to maintain order. Transportation facilities were swamped, and most of the spectators had to go without lunch.

Congress Declared Success.

The African sun blazed down as eight cardinals and a score of other high church dignitaries in robes of red and gold gathered in a stand beside the altar. The resident general of Tunisia, M. Manceron, and other French officials sat in the stand, their court uniforms glittering with medals, making a brilliant picture with the robes of the prelates.

Below the stand, hundreds of bishops clad in purple were assembled and behind them thousands of priests from all nations in garments of black, white and brown.

A choir of the white fathers of Carthage, numbering 100 voices, sang the Gregorian chant, while the thousands of priests sang the responses to the mass.

Cardinal Lepicier, the representative of Pope Pius XI, in a brief allocution, declared that the thirtieth congress had been a success and thanked Resident General Manceron for his hospitality and the assembled pilgrims for their loyalty to the holy father.

Thousands Join Chorus.

With a smile that won the hearts of the pilgrims he pronounced the papal benediction, which fell with awe-inspiring effect upon 100,000 heads and followers of three faiths.

The white fathers then sang the congress song, which was taken up by thousands of voices while the papal legate slowly led the brilliant procession away from the ruined church. The troops presented arms and massed military bands played the "Marseillaise" and the pontifical hymn.

A score of American photographers and three talking film operators rushed desperately through the crowd, so that audiences in the United States might later see and hear this magnificent pageant and its music.

The Americans, who made the 4-mile march in the closing procession were headed by Edward Kreamer, of Baltimore, carrying an American flag. William Lafferty, of Canada, carried the Papal flag, and Michael Cuneen, of New York, the French tricolor.

BOOK OF THE MONTH
"THE GREAT MOGUL" BY LOUIS TRACY, AUTHOR OF "THE WINGS OF THE MORNING."
EDGARD J. CLODE, PUBLISHER.

May 12, 1905.

Washington's new fire boat, The Firefighter, slid down the ways at Wilmington, Del. She was christened by Miss Marian West, daughter of Commissioner Henry L. West.

Robert R. West, who was sent to the Panama Canal as deputy auditor, died of yellow fever there. He was formerly pastor of the Brookland Baptist Church, and was quite well known here.

The Washington Society of the Sangerbund paid tribute to the memory of Frederick Schiller on the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the great German poet.

Congress is giving much discussion to the bill for raising of the tariff and other methods of raising revenue. This is being done to wipe out the $10,000,000 deficit in the Treasury.

The United Irish League of the District gave a concert at the Lafayette Theater in honor of Thomas Moore, the great Irish poet.

More than 7,000 persons have visited this dwelling built by the Stambaugh Construction Co., for the Thomas E Jarrell Co., since its opening for public inspection April 27.

The house is open daily from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. To reach the home, go out Sixteenth street extended to the District line, turn right on the newly completed boulevard which extends into the Colesville road and goes direct to the house.

Events of the War—13 Years Ago Today

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

District motorists have no choice as to whether they will open the windshield when it becomes coated with ice or snow. The regulations declare the motorist must do so if he can not readily clean off the windshield.

The regulation recognizes that safety is directly proportionate to the visibility enjoyed by the driver.

Example—In a car the windshield of which is thickly coated with snow, the driver is leaning out the left door to see traffic ahead. He has failed to open the windshield out of consideration for other passengers in the vehicle. The law does not authorize his courtesy. It recognizes that the driver has no view to the right from which his chief danger comes.

Is the Robot Fooling YOU?

The Paris correspondent of "VARIETY" reports:

"The music-wise Continentals object violently to mechanical music (in the theatre)."

WHAT, then, if Europeans thus prove their "music-wisdom," are we North Americans supposed to be, that we are asked to accept mechanical music—and mechanical music only—in the theatre? Music-stupid, perhaps?

Well, at least 2,000,000 theatre patrons have rejected that characterization by joining the Music Defense League. They mean that they want Real Music, not Canned Music exclusively, in the theatre.

If you value the Art of Music, you too, should be numbered among the "music-wise." Just sign and mail the coupon at the left.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

HOW those who are building beautiful homes may avoid marring them with an unsightly antenna was explained to the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects by E. J. Quinby, of the Radio Corporation. Instead of stringing wires on the roof the antenna is erected 100 yards or so from the house, out of sight, and connected with the radio set in the house by means of running a wire underground through a conduit.

In connection with apartment house antennae, Mr Quinby showed the architects a photograph of the roof of an apartment building, old style, where there were a forest of wires for 40 receiving sets strung haphazard and forming a fire and live wire hazard. Then he exhibited a picture of the roof of a modern apartment where but a single wire served as the antenna for the sets in 80 apartments.

Fay Wray INTERPRETS the MODE

For town wear a navy blue wool dress with its collar and cuff touches of white pique is very smart and practical. (Courtesy of Heim, Paris.)

Paris May 11.

SWEATERS are very much "in the mode" as to natural wastline and belts. They are generally worn inside the skirt (which is a circular one or has inverted pleats but is never pleated all around) and a harmonizing belt covers the junction of skirt and sweater. Most of them have yokes of contrasting colors knitted in, with a small close fitting round neck.

There is a great deal of fancy knit trimming around the neck and on the sleeves in the manner of the incrustations on dresses. Delightful lacy effects are achieved by very large open stitches. Some sleeves are full from just above the elbow to just short of the cuff, and then knitted into a tight fitting cuff. And some sweaters are quite sleeveless.

Much red and white are shown either separately or in one sweater, and a lot of brown and orange and white. Black and white is as fashionable in the sports world as it is in every other phase of the new wardrobe.

Sleeveless boleros will be worn with the sweaters, matching them in color and design. With jersey or tweed dresses a little knitted vest is popular for travel, For instance, a yellow knitted vestee brightens a dark brown jersey, cut in a rather low V in the front.

• • • •

Prognostications of fringe are in the air! Here and there one will see a fringed model, and one can't help but note the fact that it is graceful as well as flattering since it gives a straight up and down slim effect to gowns and figures that seem to need it.

The last one I saw was in Molyneux't summer collection, and was a black georgette evening gown with three tiers of fringe, the first ending in a bolero effect in the back, a typical Molyneux line, and the third ending at the ankle.

• • • •

It's just beyond me how anyone can even hope to have a complete wardrobe in 1930 without at least one cape in it! Whether it's on a coat or a dress, and whether it's for morning, afternoon or evening, you've just got to have a cape. So-o-o-o-o, I sketched the smartest one I could find for street wear, on a Heim navy blue woolen dress, intricately incrusted and edged as to neckline and sleeves with soft white pique.

Now, don't you think you want a cape?

• • • •

If you think for one minute that there isn't a new and chic mode for house dresses, you have several other thinks coming! The modern woman sees to it that her newest frocks for the house are chic as well as practical and comfortable. She sees to it, in other words, that they have all the best features of any or all the dresses she likes best . . it's like the Dahray design house dress described to you in detail in this week's leaflet for which you simply send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, follow the directions carefully, and make it yourself.

Great grandmother used to make her samplers on the very same kind of canvass that is so smart today when it is embroidered in colored wools, for collar and cuff sets to be worn for sports wear. And one little specialty shop in Paris went one better and made a collar, cuff and hat set which I thought you would like to see . . . so there it is up in the corner.

• • • •

Again we remind you of the weekly Dare fashion letter, in The Washington Post, every Sunday, and we urge you to look for it.

Au revoir!

WORK ON BRIDGE

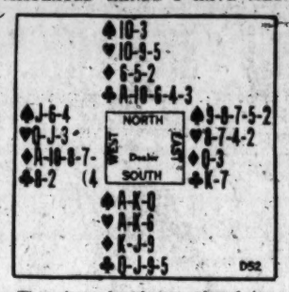
MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The above hand was played in a game of Contract Bridge. South (dealer) bid three No Trumps and that ended the contracting.

In Auction Bridge South would have obtained the contract with a bid of one No Trump.

In the play West led the Seven of Diamonds, Dummy played the Deuce, East the Queen and South won with the King. South then led the Queen of Clubs and finessed. East won with the King and returned his partner's suit. West ran four Diamonds, making a total of five tricks for his side, and consequently the Declarer fell one short of game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

Declarer, when playing to the first trick, could count three Spades, two Hearts, one Diamond and one Club as sure tricks; two more were needed for game and these were more than assured in the Club suit, even if the finesse went wrong. The only danger of not making game was that with the Club finesse losing and a Diamond being returned and West having led from a five-card suit, the adversaries would make four Diamonds and one Club.

Whether West had led from a five-card suit Declarer could not tell. Two Diamonds lower than the Seven (the card led) were missing. If East held only one of them, West's lead must have been made from a five-card suit; if East held both, West's lead was made from a four-card suit and Declarer's game was assured. If East had neither of the small Diamonds (possible but not probable) Declarer was in no danger.

Declarer, however, could assure himself of game, no matter what Diamonds East might hold, by playing South's Nine of Diamonds on East's Queen, thus permitting East to win the trick. East would return the suit and South then would play one of his honors. If the original lead had been from four, West might hold his Ace; and in that event, with the Club finesse losing, East could lead another Diamond (the third round of the suit) and West could run his two remaining Diamonds, but in that case the total Diamond winning of the adversaries would be only three tricks. If West held the Dangerous five Diamonds originally, East would have held only two originally and would not have a Diamond to lead for a third round; consequently Declarer would win an easy game.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS."

IF May 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:40 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

A change, or the preliminary indications of one, is augured for you on this date, which will affect either your personal or business connections. It will be a time of opportunity for those who have courage and foresight.

The child born on this May 12 will be definitely a "mental" type, and will be interested in the sciences. It will be rather dreamy, and will prefer the companionship of books to that of its childhood playmates. It will be very high principled.

You, as a Taurian, are all that is practical; you are a solid sort of a person, one on whom another can lean without being let down. You would make a better servant than master, and you are thoroughly capable of carrying out plans intrusted to you. This does not mean that you are a menial minded person, but you are a builder, and not a designer. You would make an excellent partner, coworker, with one who has ideas, for you would have the patience, endurance and executive ability to carry them out. You are absolutely trustworthy and secretive as a friend or business associate.

You should possess great physical vitality and magnetism, and you should have healing and soothing powers over those who are nervous and irritable. You should never allow yourself to become dazy, as too sedentary a life would be very detrimental to your health. All morbid tendencies should be resisted, as this is one of your weaknesses. You lean more to the objective and concrete than the subjective and ideal, and you are apt to be extremely materialistic. Although it takes a great deal to rouse you, there are times when you are beside yourself with rage. You can be very stubborn.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

WINDOW BOXES ALWAYS DECORATIVE.

WE are fast adopting the English custom of window boxes secured on the outside of the window and filled with suitable growing plants as a form of summer decoration of our city and suburban homes.

In many places—especially in cities where we have not only lack of lawn but little or no yard space, and in some cases not even a porch—we can not only derive pleasure from such window boxes ourselves, but give pleasure to our neighbors as well. For a short time this pleasing and artistic idea was confined to the houses fronting on public spaces and small parks, but today you see the boxes everywhere you go, on front windows, porch roofs and almost anywhere they can be supported.

A window box, if planted intelligently, is a delight all summer, and when fall comes we can discard our summer plants and replace them with low-growing evergreens—or if money must be considered, with terminal ends of laurel. Merely stick the ends into the soil—they will not root, of course, but they will keep green the entire winter.

We must, to be successful with our window box, consider above all else location. If our windows face away from the sun, it would be useless to chose flowering plants of any sort.

But we need not despair of having beautiful boxes because we lack the direct rays of the sun. In the window box we have an idea for beautifying the dreary side of our home. Here our boxes may be filled with plants which grow vigorously because thus located they are in their natural habitat. In such a location some plants flourish and are a continual delight from early spring until late fall.

There are certain varieties of plants with which every one can be successful even with little knowledge or actual experience in plant growing. The variety of plants best suited to a sunless location are, strictly speaking, foliage plants, which in their way are just as satisfying and frequently more luxuriant than flowering plants. Crotons, ferns, sansevieras and vines such as English ivy and variegated vincas to drop over the side make a pleasing combination.

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

NEW USES OF RHUBARB.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Young, tender rhubarb precedes almost all other fruits in the spring, and is usually welcomed by the family after winter's preponderance of dried or canned fruits, however liberally interspersed with oranges, grapefruit, apples and bananas. It is not necessary, however, always to serve rhubarb as a sauce for breakfast or pie for dinner. Rhubarb is a good filling for tarts, cobblers, and shortcakes. A "cobbler" is baked in an earthenware or glass baking dish with the fruit on the bottom and the biscuit dough on top. A rhubarb shortcake is made exactly like a strawberry shortcake. The biscuit dough is baked in a single large round layer, which is split and generously buttered while hot. Hard sauce is better than cream with either of these rhubarb desserts because of the acidity of the fruit.

Try also a rhubarb betty while "pieplant" is in season. You can make it with either rhubarb sauce or raw sliced rhubarb. To a quart of the sweetened sauce or raw sliced rhubarb and sugar, allow a quart of fine dry bread crumbs combined with 3 or 4 tablespoons of melted butter before they are put with the fruit. Fill a greased baking dish with alternate layers of sauce and buttered crumbs, and sift cinnamon over the top. If the rhubarb is cooked, bake for about 15 minutes in a moderate oven. If raw rhubarb is used, sprinkle each layer well with sugar, and cover the baking dish during the first part of the cooking so that the rhubarb will steam tender. Cook for 25 minutes or more and then remove the top and allow the crumbs to brown. Serve rhubarb betty hot with or without hard sauce.

OIL PROSPECTS IMPROVE AS OWNERS AGREE TO REGULATE FLOW

New Output Restriction Brings Rise in Stocks

Consolidation, Public or Private, Inevitable Through Threat of Further Oversupply and Cutthroat Competition Among Companies.

BY IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.
Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., May 11.—Oil stocks are looking up. Refinery gasoline has advanced in some districts, the price of crude petroleum has been raised in California. Restriction of output by prorating agreements in individual fields, sanctioned by the laws of California and Oklahoma as well as Texas, and an understanding between refiners and producers, have given some semblance of conservation of oil resources to a situation that is basically unsound and wasteful. Indeed, the appearance of a few larger "gushers" in any one of many fields might upset the present arrangements.

The securities underlying one of our greatest industries would be again, in jeopardy. It is a feverishly competitive situation, in which oil producers and refiners have been draining oil from common pools, each working his own wells, night and day, 365 days a year in a mad scramble to get his share, and more, of the common supply.

Unregulated private ownership and operation are most detrimental to the public interest in this industry. This is true, especially, because oil wells have very low running expenses. Hence there is a tendency toward cutthroat competition. "It pays to run at a loss," as Mr. Hadley once said of railways; for the fixed charges must be met whether a well runs or not, and any receipts over running expenses increase the profits of the operator. The public, however, is injured by the draining of the oil pools and the waste of an irreplaceable resource.

Public Ownership Proposed.

Public ownership is one proposed solution to the problem. Another solution, which is being attempted, is that of restriction of output while retaining private ownership. Yet a third proposed solution is that of "integration" of the industry by ever growing mergers.

Consolidation, public or private, there must be. That has been the history of all industries in which the necessity for large initial investment has been combined with small running expenses. In the cases of the railroads and public utilities, which presented the alternatives of cutthroat competition in rates, or Government ownership, or fixing of the price of transportation by public regulatory bodies, the latter solution has been adopted.

In the case of the oil companies the gigantic networks of pipe lines, amounting to 100,000 miles in this country, have been made common carriers under the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Any individual who "strikes oil" on his own parcel of land is entitled to the use of an adjacent pipe line, just as he is entitled to the service of a railroad for carrying his freight.

Situation Now Competitive.

But there the analogy ceases. The great oil-producing and refining organizations have not yet been classified as public utilities. The industry is dominated by huge corporations watching their chance to destroy competitors, big or little. Some 37 out of 16,000 American oil companies today control about 80 per cent of the country's total output. Among these 37 companies, 9 report about 75 per cent of the total net profits in the industry. These nine major companies account for about two-thirds of the annual surplus and reserves of the 37 units. They turn out 55 of every 100 barrels of refined petroleum in this country, of which the domestic production in 1929 was more than 1,000,000,000 barrels.

The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey alone accounts for one-fifth of total profits of the group of 37 companies, and 17 per cent of their aggregate reserves. Just now the validity of the proposed merger by another of the big nine, the Standard Oil Co. of New York, with the Vacuum Oil Co. is being contested in a friendly suit which the Department of Justice brought in the Missouri district.

Intricate agreements have effected spasmodic restriction of output in nearly every considerable oil field during the past year. The agreements have varied widely in method and duration. Many of the larger refineries have agreed to conduct their operations on the basis of the six-day week; marketing arrangements have been concluded between Standard Oil of New York and the Royal Dutch Co., the greatest oil producer in the world; the oil conservation board, established by President Coolidge, has cooperated with similar boards established by the oil-producing States and with the companies in establishing a certain measure of control. Gradually production of crude and refined petroleum was brought into comparative balance with the increased demand for oil products. As a consequence, oil stocks rose again almost to their level before the panic, but have slumped off in market recessions.

Oversupply Still Problem.

But what if new and rich oil fields should be discovered? What if improved manufacturing processes, especially the "cracking" or the hydrogenation process, should develop a method of producing gasoline as seems likely, up to 100 per cent of the supply of crude oil? What if field methods should further notably increase the proportion of oil brought forth from oil sands?

The oil stock price index at the end of April, 1930, had recovered 71 per cent of the losses between 1929-1930 high and low, to a point 8 per cent below the prepanic high for week ended September 20, 1929.

There is still a situation of oversupply, brought about by just such improvements as these. The research laboratories of the great companies are working on new processes of great promise. Two problems call for solution: (1) the comprehensive conservation of this natural resource, and (2) supply of the reasonable demands of consumers at reasonable prices. Neither cutthroat competition nor unrestricted monopoly can give the answer.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, May 11 (A.P.).—A group of Chicago capitalists has organized the Chicago Gulf Corporation, which has taken over the natural gas and oil properties of the Jackson County Oil Syndicate, comprising about 30,000 acres in Jackson County, Tex. John Taylor Wilson is president and chairman of the board of the new corporation, which also plans to acquire the properties of the Lavaca Gas Corporation and has a contract with the Houston Gulf Gas Co. to sell all of its gas products.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation has called for redemption on June 15 next, all its secured serial 5 per cent gold notes series C, due in 1931, and series D, due in 1932. The redemption price for the series C notes is 100 per cent of their principal amount and for the series D notes 100 and a half per cent, accrued interest to the redemption date also being paid.

The National Lumber Manufacturers Association says that reports from 609 soft wood mills for the week ended May 3 indicate considerable improvement over recent weeks in soft wood lumber demand, as compared with production. For the same week, however, 294 hardwood mills reported new business less than three-fourths of the cut. Combined reports of 888 hard wood and soft wood mills for the week gave combined new business 9 per cent less and shipments 8 per cent less than production, which amounted to 374,271,000 feet.

Announcement was made today of the election of Heber C. Hicks, former president of the National Association of Securities Commissioners and director of the Utah State Securities Commission, as president and chairman of the board of governors of the New York Mining Exchange. The mining securities market was organized some months ago, but does not expect to begin operations for some time.

NEW YORK STOCKS RALLY FROM BREAK

But Only Rails, Tobaccos and Foods Make Net Gains for Full Week.

INDUSTRIALS STILL LOW

By H. B. BROUGHAM.
(Irving Fisher Service.)

The Irving Fisher index of industrial stocks stood at 146.1 on Monday of last week, after the preceding week's sharp fall to the lowest point since February 25, 1930. It then showed a decrease of 11.8 per cent from the high of 165.6 on April 11. At last week's close, however, industrial stock prices had gained slightly over Monday's low, closing the week only 9.8 per cent below the April high.

Of the 320 stocks in the selection, 54 per cent were off at the week's close, 23 per cent were up and 23 per cent showed no change.

The other stock groups moved in parallel fashion with the all-industrials index, with slight gains made at the week's close from the lows recorded on Monday.

Rails, tobaccos and foods were the only groups to register a gain for the week as a whole; rails were up 1.37 per cent; tobaccos, 0.54 per cent, and foods, 0.22 per cent.

Record Volume Traded In.

The average daily value of tradings on the New York Stock Exchange in common industrial stocks rose by 18 per cent last week to $246,400,000, the record since the week ended November 16, 1929. Monday's tradings made a new high for this year, the largest volume traded since October 19.

Value traded in all stocks rose by 15.6 per cent last week to $331,500,000.

Stores and auto accessories were the only groups showing a decline in average daily tradings last week.

Radios and theaters, electrical equipment, public utilities, steels and tobaccos were conspicuous among the groups that rose.

Paris and London Prices Weak.

Stock prices in London took a sharp fall last week, declining by 3.25 per cent to a point 4.2 per cent above the 1929 low.

Paris stock prices suffered a slight decline last week of 0.95 per cent. The index dropped to 135.3, less than 1 per cent above the low of the 1929 crash on November 29.

Berlin prices have shown a less speculative movement in last week's rise of 1.7 per cent recovering more than half of the loss received in the recent slump.

The index of 225 industrial common stocks shows what a substantially representative $100 worth of stocks in 1926 would now amount to if held unchanged since that year. This index is weighted by shares outstanding. The index of "50 most active," or market leaders, shows the result of reinvesting the $100 every week in the market favorites of that week. This index is weighted by shares traded, the list changing weekly. The last column of the table gives the average yield per cent on these weeks' 50 leaders at current prices.

Speculative Stocks Heavy Losers.

Speculative issues were the heaviest losers in last week's market, closing the week 6.1 per cent off from the previous week's close, and 14.2 per cent off from the high of 134.4 on April 10.

Investment and semiinvestment issues suffered less acutely at the opening of the week and have made better progress toward the close, the declines being only 3 and 2.3 per cent respectively, at the close. These groups have suffered by a fall of 8.2 per cent and 10.8 per cent, respectively, in the recent slump from the 1930 highs.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By
CHARLES W. STORM.

Would Take "Flier."

B. M.—A friend of mine has advised me to take a "flier" in either Davison Chemical or International Agricultural Chemical. Can you give me some information regarding both stocks?

Answer—This column does not advise on taking "fliers" in the market, but merely gives pertinent facts. Both issues pay nothing at the present time, but of the two it would appear that Davison is in the stronger position to do so from an earnings basis. Davison has adopted a policy of absorbing its best customers in the fertilizer business which has resulted in large economies. This absorption has resulted in Davison now having 53 plants extending from New England to Texas, and large holdings of raw materials in Cuba and Florida. Earnings of $3.34 on Davison shares compare with 79 cents per common share for International.

Yellow Truck & Coach.

B. G. F.—I am writing for an opinion on Yellow Truck & Coach. Can you tell me anything about it?

Answer—This company makes all kinds of commercial motor vehicles. For the March quarter there was a deficit of 7 cents a share on the combined Class "B" and common shares after preferred dividends, as against a deficit of 16 cents on the Class "B" shares for the preceding similar quarter. The dividend on the preferred has been passed. Earnings are now stated to show improvement over last year because of the General Motors management, and an important announcement concerning the two regarding the latter's truck business is expected shortly. As no dividends are paid on Yellow Truck Class "B" or common, they must be regarded as speculative.

COMMODITY PRICE LEVEL STILL LOWER

Drop of Index to 89 Is Third Largest Setback During the Year.

DOLLAR PURCHASE MORE

Far from showing any tendency to halt its long-continued decline, the commodity price level last week fell to a still lower estate. The index dropped to 89.0 (1926 equals 100). This was a 0.78 per cent drop, as compared with a fall of 0.55 per cent the preceding week. It was the third largest setback of the year.

Since the short period of rising prices enjoyed during the weeks of March 28 and April 4, the rate of decline has definitely accelerated; within four weeks the index has fallen off 2.52 per cent. There were nearly three times as many falls as rises last week.

The purchasing power of the dollar, which is the reciprocal of the com-

Closed Six Months in 1914.

The stock market was closed in July, 1914, to December, in order to prevent world-wide liquidation of foreigned-owned stocks in our market at the outbreak of the war. The closing during the panic last fall was for a different reason, that is, the sheer exhaustion of clerical forces.

DROUGHT IN WEST BROKEN BY RAINS

Except in Southern Kansas, Wheat Stands Reported Much Benefited.

EAST NEEDS SHOWERS

The drought in the southwest areas of the winter wheat belt is definitely broken. Last week's precipitation was highly beneficial to all wheat stands except those in southern Kansas, which were too far gone beforehand. The eastern sections of the belt now need rain. Spring wheat seeding is now practically done, and the stands that are up are doing well. Rapid progress is noted in northerly areas.

Corn planting progressed last week and seedlings are doing well in the Western sections with rainy weather, but dryness in the East has caused irregularly. Local showers have not been sufficient.

Westerly cotton plantations, also, were relatively better off last week, dryness and too high temperatures retarding germination in the East.

When Money was at 50 Per Cent.

In California, following the gold rush in 1850, rates of interest became so high that they appear ludicrous to us now. There were many instances during the transition period from poverty to affluence when loans were made at over 50 per cent per annum. The borrowers considered themselves lucky to get rates so "low"—and, in view of their expectations of great gains, they actually were low.

Women Stars Open British Title Play

Glenna Collett Faces Early Test; Record Field of 179.

"Big Four" of U. S. in Top Form for Start of Play Today.

FORMBY, England, May 11 (A.P.).—A record field of 179 players, including a score of Americans, will compete in the British women's golf championship, which opens here early tomorrow.

There are entrants from Australia, Tasmania, South Africa, Canada, the United States and all parts of the British Isles, but there is none from France, where the title has gone twice, although it never yet has crossed the Atlantic.

The American women, most of whom were members of the team Glenna Collett headed in the recent international match they lost to a picked English squad at Sunningdale, have had nearly a week of practice over the Formby course and have accustomed themselves to the pace of the greens and as much as possible to the gusty winds.

America's Big Four In Form.

America's big four—Glenna Collett, Helen Hicks, Maureen Orcutt and Virginia Van Wie—have been playing in good form and are expected to acquit themselves with honor. All of Britain's well-known stars except Joyce Wetherec are competing. The absence of Miss Wethered makes America's hopes of winning the title much brighter, for it was this superstar who stopped Miss Collett's march toward the championship in the finals last year.

The tournament consists of 18-hole match play rounds until only two women remain to fight it out for the title at 36 holes.

The Americans are scattered throughout the draw so that no two of them meet on the first round, although they will start elliminating one another during the second round if all are successful in their first matches.

First and Second Rounds Tomorrow.

The first and second rounds will be played tomorrow; the third round on Tuesday; the fourth and fifth rounds, Wednesday; the sixth and seventh, or quarter and semifinals on Thursday, and the 36-hole final on Friday.

Helen Hicks, starting her first round match with Doris Chambers, former British champion, at 8:50 a. m., leads the Americans into the fray. Throughout the day the Americans will tee off at intervals, with Mrs. Stewart Hanley, of Detroit, starting out against Vivienne Bramwell, of Gloucester, in the last match of the day.

Miss Collett, on whom the Americans look as the most likely to win the title, is playing in top form.

"I like the Formby course very much," she told the Associated Press tonight. "I'm playing as well as I could hope."

The American champion has scored a 71 on the Formby layout which has 73 for par and stretches 6,692 yards

Reds Defeat Phils, 5-4; Frey Wins 4th Straight

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 11 (A.P.).—Bennie Frey, recruit pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, was credited with his fourth straight victory in taking the third game of the series from the Philadelphia Club, 5 to 4. Frey has not lost a game. The victory for the Reds made it two out of three from the Phillies.

The Reds were handed the game in the ninth when Frey, first man up, singled, was sacrificed to second by Callaghan and took third when Heilmann and Walker were passed. With two balls on Stripp, Elliott relieved Koupal and walked Stripp, forcing in Frey with the winning tally.

Bobby Jones Shoots 75 Over Sandwich Course

Sandwich, England, May 11 (A. P.).—Bobby Jones paid a surprise visit to the Royal St. George's course today and played the "most difficult eighteen in the world" in 75 strokes despite a keen easterly wind and intermittent showers.

Bobby played with Harrison R. Johnston and Roland Mackenzie. The American open champion motored from London early in the day. He was not expected to practice over the course until tomorrow, and the secret of his arrival was so well kept that only about 30 saw him shoot the layout.

Jones went out in 36 and was home in 39. His best hole was the seventeenth, of 443 yards, where he got a birdie 4.

Bobby said afterward that Sandwich was tthe same testing course it always has been.

BRITON WINS ST. GEORGE'S PLAY-OFF

Dr. Willing Defeated by 6 Strokes at Sandwich.

SANDWICH, England, May 11 A. P.).—For the second time in his golfing career, Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, Oreg., dentist, and oldest member of the American Walker Cup Team, today lost a play-off of a tie for the coveted St. George's Grand Challenge Vase.

Willing and young Rex Hartley, of the British Walker Cup Team, who had tied at 148 at the end of the regular 36 holes of play yesterday, shot it out over the Sandwich course today and the Britisher surprised a large gallery by turning in a comparatively easy eighteen-hole victory over the veteran West Coast shotmaker. Hartley won with a 79 to Willing's 85.

Weather Handicaps Players.

The players were handicapped today by weather, rain falling during a part of the play. Later when the rain stopped the players were forced to breast a strong southwest wind on the homeward half of the round.

Hartley made victory virtually certain by going out in 35 to Willing's 43, leaving the Portland dentist with the almost impossible task of making up a deficit of eight strokes over the last nine holes. Willing apparently was off his game from the start and he was not playing with his usual confidence. His long game was uncertain and he was off the line a number of times with his putts.

Hartley, on the other hand, shot a brilliant first nine. He took three putts at the seventh and was bunkered at the eighth. But against these errors he sank a chip shot for a two at the third and holde a 20-yard putt at the ninth for a three.

Britisher Misses Short Putt.

The Britisher missed a 1-foot putt at the tenth, but Willing could not take advantage of it because he himself was bunkered and each got down in five. Hartley again missed a short putt on the eleventh and Willing regained a stroke, but the Briton retrieved it at the next hole.

Willing won the fourteenth with a five and regained two strokes at the seventeenth when Hartley took two to recover from a bunker and needed seven to get down. Willing was bunkered at the eighteenth and could not match Hartley's perfect four.

Sam Rice Tops League Batters With .433 Mark

(Associated Press.)

The big six temporarily became the big seven yesterday as Bill Terry, of the New York Giants, and Babe Herman, of Brooklyn, slugged their way into joint leadership of the National League, replacing Frank O'Doul. Each of them made three hits in four times at bat and brought their batting averages to .447. Paul Waner went hitless in three times at bat, but managed to hold second place by a 1-point margin over Sam Rice, of Washington, who took the American League lead at the .433 mark. Rice made two hits in four tries yesterday.

Gallagher 6-5 Choice Over Lamar

District Heavyweight Rivals in Baltimore Battle Tonight.

Bout Scheduled After 9 O'clock; Interest High Here.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 11.—Neraly three years since they fought to an unsatisfactory draw at Silver Spring, Henry Lamar and Marty Gallagher, two sons of Washington, will trade wallops tonight in Carlin's Arena here to decide the mythical District of Columbia heavyweight chmpionship.

The bout will go ten rounds or less and if the ballyhoo holds true it will be less, for the boys have been reported to be girding for a slam-bang battle. For the convenience of hundreds of Washington fans who have planned to atetnd, the management has arranged the preliminaries so that the main attraction will start around 9:30 o'clock standard time. The opening preliminary is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock, standard time.

Friedman Bout For Winner.

According to Matchmaker Eddie Ross, the winner will be offered a bout with Al Friedman, of Boston, but since Gallagher has defeated Friedman it is doubtful that this offer will bear any influence on the nature of the competition tonight.

There is enough natural rivalry, if not unfriendliness, between Lamar and Gallagher to assure a hotly contested fight. Each is anxious to win the argument started in 1927 at Silver Spring when they had just begun to climb the fistic ladder. While neither is close to the top among heavyweights right now, victory tonight will greatly enhance the winner's chances of going higher. There won't be much hope left for the loser.

Gallagher Likely Favorite.

Although no large bets have been reported, considerable money is being wagered with Gallagher favored at 6 to 5.

In the six-round semifinal, Billy Strickler, of Washington, will meet Joe Glazer, of Baltimore. In the opening bout of four rounds, Dave Selena will fight K. O. Burns, after which Dutch Miller will engage Carol Gretch over the same route. Then will come a six-rounder between Al Martin, former Baltimore City College boxer, and Jimmy Tramberia, of Baltimore.

37,000 Watch Giants Win From Cubs, 9-7

Chicago, May 11 (A.P.).—The Giants defeated the Cubs, 9 to 7, today in the third game of the series to strengthen their hold on first place in the National League.

The game was played on a slippery field and 29 hits were registered. Charley Root was knocked out of the box in the fifth after twelve hits had been made off him. Hubbell also sought protection in the eighth after the Cubs had knocked out four hits.

About 37,000 people attended.

The Robins hammered out eighteen hits, all but one of them coming off Larry French, who was allowed to remain in the game until the Robins started a rally in the eighth inning which netted five runs. Lil Stoner finished for Pittsburgh. Frederick and Herman hit home runs.

RED SOX WIN 5TH IN ROW BY 2 TO 1

Morris Holds Browns to 2 Hits; Fans 9 and Walks 7.

BOSTON, May 11 (A.P.).—Boston's once humble Red Sox won their fifth straight victory today by defeating St. Louis, 2 to 1, behind the two-hit pitching of Big Ed Lewis.

Regan's home run off Lefty Walter Stewart in the sixth gave the Sox their one-run margin. The Browns have been held to four hits in two full games here, for yesterday Milton Gaston also let them down with but two safe blows.

Morris was a little wild, passing seven, but also puzzling, for he struck out nine.

Yanks Beat Tigers, 7-6; Ruffling and Ruth Star

New York, May 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Charlie Ruffing, the big pitcher obtained by the Yankees last week from the Boston Red Sox, started the Yankees off on a new winning streak on his first appearance in a New York uniform today, when the Detroit Tigers were beaten in a tight struggle, 7 to 6, with the enthusiastic approval of 46,000 cheering fans.

In a game which began like a real slugging orgy, in which it seemed that no pitcher could stand up before the hitters of either team, Ruffing finally wore down the Tigers by main strength.

His opponent at the start, Victor Sorrel, was driven from the box by the Yanks' vicious onslaughts, which began with Babe Ruth's fifth homer of the year in the first inning. But Ruffing grew steadily better as the game went on, allowed only two hits in the last four innings, and after the sixth inning only one man reached first base.

Thomases Meet In Final Game Of Series Today

KENTUCKY BELIEVES GALLANT FOX WILL BE BEATEN

Chief Support Is Drawn by High Foot

Large Field Assured for Derby With 20 Possibilities.

Lord Derby's Presence Serves to Heighten Interest in Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 11.—Gallant Fox, Crack Brigade, Ned O., and Gone Away will represent the East in the Kentucky Derby and by Monday night these horses will be housed at Churchill Downs, in the outskirts of Louisville. Kentuckians are figuring on a derby field of seventeen, and profess to believe a Westerner can whi pthe Preakness winner.

This is a mild attitude for the Blue Grass, for as a rule the prophets here in former years were ready to give you the name of the horse and furnish details of how it could be done. This year there is a reticence as to the particular horse, but the one mostly mentioned is High Foot. High Foot started Saturday and finished fifth to Pansy Walker. Gallant Knight, also a Derby hope, was third in the race, which appears to have been more of a workout race for these two and others.

No one seems to know the strength of the E. R. Bradley pair, Buckeye Poet and Blazing Thru, but they were no top-notchers as 2-year-olds, and were beaten by Tannery, another Derby candidate, at Lexington a fortnight ago.

There may be twenty starters in the big race, but around seventeen is believed the minimum.

Lord Derby Draws Interest.

The coming of Lord Derby, who will present the gold trophy to the Derby winner's owner, is causing more interest than any evnt outsid the race itself. The English earl will never induce Kentuckians to give his name or the race the pronunciation he prefers.

Interest in Lord Derby here is based on the history of himself and family in connection with breeding and racing horses and is much more intimate than is realized. Kentucky is more familiar with English thoroughbreds and their record than are those in any part of the country. The presence of so distinguished a horseman and sportsman will stimulate interest in the Derby.

Matt J. Winn, who made the Derby largely a national instead of a local race, expects 100,000 to pass through the gates next Saturday at Churchhill Downs. More elaborate preparations have been made than ever before the event. There will be a nationwide radio hookup for broadcasting the race.

Weather Is Concern.

One concern is the weather, it rained here today and the spring rains in the past have held on when once started. Rain greatly marred the the last two derbies, bith as to the inconvenience and discomfort of the crowds, especially women, and as to the race as a contest.

The hotels are determined not to lose money through any pride over their derby. Very good rooms could be reserved a month or so ago for $20 a day provided the reservation were for three days or more. There is no such thing any more as "Derby Day". It is "Derby Week."

Sixty Trains From Chicago.

Churchill Downs management was informed today that 60 trains from Chicago alone already have been enrolled for the Derby trip and to relieve hotel situation, the Derby trains from other cities, like New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and many others places, will be equiped to feed and sleep all taking advantage of these specials.

Horses deemed certain starters in the Derby are Gallant Fox (Sande(, Crack Brigade (Ellis), Gallant Knight (Schutte), A-Breezing Thru (J. Smith), A-Buckeye Poet (Legere), Sydney (Fronk), Ned O (Quattlebaum), Tannery, (W. Garner), Play Time (oltiletti), Kilkerry (Walls), Broadway Limited (T. May), High Foot (. Meyers), Gone Away (M. Garner), Billy hamp (No Boy), Uncle Luther (Pichon), Busy (McMrossen), Dick O'Hara (L. Jones). A-Bradley entry.

This is just the ground work for formation of the Derby field. Hal Price Headley may send one or two. No filly has been mentioned as a probability.

Nicholson and Thompson Win in Four-Ball Match

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

ONE of the largest galleries ever seen on the Washington Golf and Country Club course in a match in which golfers of national reputation did not participate, followed a four-ball match yesterday afternoon and were rewarded by witnessing a succession of pars and birdies. The contestants were Maurice J. McCarthy, former intercollegiate champion, and Frank K. Roesch, the club champion, paired against Henry D. Nicholson and Dave Thomson, the club professional.

The latter pair won 1 up on the eighteenth green when McCarthy missed a four-foot putt which would have given him a birdie 3 and halved the match.

Nicholson started with a birdie 2 on the second hole, but McCarthy squared the match with a birdie 4 on the fourth. Then Thomson captured a birdie on the eighth, but Roesch again made the match all even with a birdie on the ninth.

McCarthy's Eagle on 15th.

Squares Match.

With the tenth, eleventh and twelfth halved in pars, Nicholson and Thomson won the fourteenth, but again the match was all square when McCarthy scored a spectacular eagle 3 on the fifteenth. The sixteenth was halved by Thomson and Roesch with birdie 3s, and then Thomson won the seventeenth with a birdie 3, his side being then 1 up. The final hole was halved in par 4s, although if McCarthy had not missed his putt, the match would have ended all even. Roesch nearly made a birdie 3 on the eighteenth green, playing his ball to the lip of the cup from two feet off the green. The best ball of the winners was 70, but McCarthy and Roesch had 69.

The mixed Scotch foursome at the Manor Club yesterday, eighteen holes, medal play, handicap, was won by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. McClelland with a card of 91—14—77. Mrs. George D. See and B. C. Hartig were runners-up with 102—23—79.

Phil King Woodmont Class A Winner.

In the sweepstakes tournament at the Woodmont Club yesterday the winners were as follows: Class A—first, Philip King, 87—18—69; runner-up, Fulton Brylawski, 83—14—69. Class B—winners, tie, C. D. Kaufman, 107—39—68; Julian Reis, 101—33—68.

The event at the Indian Spring Club yesterday was a four-ball, best-ball handicap, 18 holes. The winners were George J. Richardson, Fred Baer, Harry H. Kidwell and Hugh E. Phillips, who had a best ball of 78, less 21 handicap, net 57. All of these players had high handicaps, Richardson being allowed 23 and all the rest 27. The runners-up were W. F. Dubois, W. H. Presley, Emmet Jasper and Fred Spicer, who with a best ball of 79 had a handicap of 17, giving them a net 62.

Four Tied in Kickers' Event At Bannockburn.

A blind bogey competition, otherwise known as a kickers' handicap, was the feature at the Bannockburn Club yesterday. The lucky number was 70 and there was a quadruple tie, as follows: Middleton Beaman, 86—16—70; E. O. Hanson, 92—22—70; C. J. Laws, 93—23—70; and F. M. Yager, 89—19—70.

The Star cup tournament is scheduled for this morning on the course of the Indian Spring Club. Competition is 36 holes, medal play, handicap allowance, with 18 holes today and 18 holes tomorrow. The entry list includes more than sixty women golfers.

A tombstone tournament was the event at the Argyle Club yesterday, 18 holes, medal play, handicap. The winner was L. P. Harrison, who with a gross score of 72 and 16 handicap, allowing him 88 strokes, played his final stroke 19 feet form the cup on the nineteenth green. T. M. Belshe, 72—8—80, was over the nineteenth green and took second prize. Other prize winners in the order named were W. F. Beasley, F. M. Shortall, Wm. P. DiEste, James Grant and John D. Baldwin.

179 WOMEN SEEK BRITISH GOLF TITLE

through sand dunes skirting the Irish Sea.

All members of the American party are enthusiastic over Miss Collett's chances, if not over their own. The Americans have practiced little the past two days, one reason being the crowded condition of the course yesterday. Miss Collett confined her golf today to a half hour of practice shots.

Miss Collett has none too easy a position in the draw and probably her hardest test will come on Wednesday morning when, barring upsets, she again will meet Molly Gourlay who defeated her during the matches at Sunningdale. However, that defeat came only two days after Miss Collett had arrived in England and she had had no chance to hit her stride on English links.

Miss Collett is in the first quarter of the draw, the other Americans there being Rosalie Knapp, of New York; Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, N. Y.; Mrs. Lee Mida, of Chicago; Mrs. Leo Federman, of New York. Miss Collett must eliminate all of these rivals to reach the semifinals. Among the well-known English golfers threatening the American champion in the first quarter are Mrs. Temple Dobell and Mrs. J. B. Watson.

First round pairings, affecting the American entrants, follow:

Miss Hicks vs. Doris Chambers, Wirral.
Miss Wall vs. Mrs. A. N. Holm, Elie and Earlsferry.
Mrs. Hill vs. Mrs. W. F. Scott, Formby.
Miss Bender vs. Miss P. Montgomery, St. Rule.
Miss Fordyce vs. Mrs. A. C. P. Medrington, Birkdale.
Miss Stifel vs. Miss Billy Holmes, Chigswell.
Miss Wattles vs. Miss M. Mearns, West Lancashire.
Miss Bennett vs. Mrs. H. (Edith Leitch) Guedella, Wolton Heath.
Miss Orcutt vs. Mrs. R. Wynn, Rotterham.
Mrs. Martelle vs. Miss Diana Fishwick, North Foreland.
Miss Quier vs. Miss D. Marshall, North Shore.

SECOND ROUND.
(First Round Byes.)

Miss Collett vs. Miss M. Beard, Ferntown.
Miss Knapp vs. Miss M. White, Roehampton.
Mrs. Mida vs. Miss Barbara Miller, Wentworth.
Miss Holzderber vs. Miss Phyllis Lobbett, Northampshire.
Mrs. Federman vs. Mrs. Douglas Grant, Canterbury.
Miss Van Wie vs. Mrs. C. R. Taylor, Colwyn Bay.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY OPENERS TO TIGERS, GRAYS

Free Scoring Marks Two Games

Rockville Is Victim of Takoma Tgiers by 11-3 Score.

Colonials Bow, 16-11, at Chevy Chase; Knights Star.

THE Takoma Tigers and Chevy Chase Grays got off to winning starts in the opening games of the Montgomery County section of the Capital City League yesterday. The Tigers decisively defeated the Rockville A. A. Nine, 11 to 3, and the Grays walloped the Colonials, 16 to 11, in a slugfest. The Bethesda Firemen idled by virtue of having drawn a bye.

The left-handed pitcher's battle in the Tiger-Rockville game turned out to be all Ray Davidson, as that hurler out-twirled Willie Coleman, Rockville's best. Although he was touched for ten bingles, Davidson kept them all well scattered and benefited by striking out ten batsmen, three in the first inning, when Rockville filled the bases with none out. Coleman's support hurt him in the early innings, but his wildness caused his own exit in the eighth in favor of his brother, Bud Coleman, who finished out the string in impressive manner, striking out three. W. Coleman, in his good innings, struck out eleven Tigers.

James Furnishes Fielding Feature.

The Tigers put up a good fielding game and once brought the crowd to its feet when James cut off a run in the fourth with a beautiful throw from deep center field after a catch of a fly ball. The best fielding for Rockville was done by Cashell at short.

The pitching of Ray Knight found its way to th espotlight in the Chevy Chase-Colonial game. Knight hurled impressive ball, striking out twelve and more or less coasting to victory in the later innings.

In keeping with his brother's good work on the mound, Dick Knight led the Grays at the bat with four solid bingles in six times at bat. The remainder of the Gray batting array found its way into the slugging row, hitting both Watson and Nelligar to all corners of the lot.

Knight Brothers In Star Roles.

The Colonials had two players who got int othe home run class in Stewart and Mahoney. The Lovejoy team wasted hits, of which several were of the extra base variety.

RED SOX BOW TO DIXIES, 13 TO 10

Adair Hurling Hero in Hitting Orgy; Stahl Stars.,

AN earlier defeat was avenged yesterday by the Dixie Pigs when they turned back the Washington Red Sox, 13 to 10, on the Seat Pleasant Diamond. Both teams hit hard and often. Blackie Adair came to the rescue of the Pigs in the third and checked the Sox after the fourth.

Clapper, who started for the winners, was roughly treated. Three Red Sox used three hurlers and all fared similarly. The Dixie Pigs evened the count with a five-run rally in the sixth and pushed over three to clinch the decision in the eighth.

Booker and Bowie Lead Sox Attack.

Huck Stahl, with four safeties, and Abergail and Dunn, with three each, led the winning attack. Booker, with four hits, and Bowie, with three, were chief stickmen for the Red Sox.

BUSINESS PROGRESS CONTINUES HESITANT

Improved Retail Sales and Larger Bank Clearings Are Bright Spots.

OUTDOOR PROJECTS GAIN

New York, May 11 (A.P.).—Business operations remained somewhat hesitant during the past week.

Further sagging in commodity prices causing renewed uncertainty, but signs of slow improvement continued to appear, including reports of better retail sales, larger bank clearings at interior centers, and renewed consumer buying of copper.

Troublesome situations in some industries appeared to be fairly well adjusted. A large radio manufacturer announced price increases, and expressed the opinion that the recent price cutting was at an end. The inventories with which the industry was troubled early in the year were reported to have been disposed of, and price advanced by other manufacturers were predicted. Automobile sales continued to gain, particularly in the low-priced field, used car inventories were reported well cleared up and production of new cars closely adjusted to dealer requirements.

Steel Mill Operations Sag.

Steel mill operations slackened slightly for the second successive week and are now around 77 per cent of capacity for the country at large, but a sag in operations at this time of year is not abnormal, and current operations compare favorably with the average at this time over the last few years, although they are well below the abnormal rate at this time last year.

Prices for both crude and finished steel, however, still failed to show resistance. Leading executives attending the semiannual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute generally predicted improvement as the year progresses, and fairly satisfactory profits.

Copper prices were shaded further, reaching 12½ cents for domestic shipment, as compared to the recent 18-cent level. But at the new prices, the buyers strike appeared to be broken, and heavy buying was reported both by domestic and foreign consumers. At the close of the week, it was rumored in trade circles that the large producers were considering an upward revision of the price.

Textile Index Off Sharply.

As an indication of the continued easing in wholesale commodity prices, the Annalist preliminary weekly index sagged four-tenth of a point to 131.9, reflecting declines in finished steel, copper, lead, tin and zinc. The textile index reached a new low for the postwar period due to a further decline in silk prices.

Reports of business activity generally indicated some curtailment of activity in the manufacturing lines, while outdoor work showed seasonal gains, particularly heavy construction. Freight car loadings as reported for the latest week continued to hold at the lowest levels in recent years. The report, covering the week ended April 26, showed a gain of 14,293 over the previous week, which is slightly less than the normal seasonal increase during the period.

Evidence of increasing business activity appeared last week with moderate increases in bank clearings. Although the total clearings for the country are often distorted by speculative activity in Wall street, several interior cities taken separately showed gains.

Nonagriculturals Lose Heavily.

Most of the individual group losses in the commodity price-level drop last week were concentrated in the nonagricultural division; this group included items showing losses such as leather, copper, tin, rosin, turpentine, corn crude oil, cottonseed oil, linseed oil and sugar.

Building materials, although mostly in the finished goods group, also suffered considerable loss, going off 0.96 per cent as an entity.

The rift in the clouds was found in the general strength shown in agricultural groups. Farm products returned a healthy rise of 1.06 per cent, the improving items being beef steers, hogs, wheat, oats and cotton. With this rise, the purchasing power of farm goods reversed its trend of the preceding week and rose 1.67 per cent to 109.6.

Wholesale commodity prices in European markets took sharp falls last week. The index for France was off by 1.1 per cent to a new low of 80.9. German prices fell to 94.0, while the index for England made a new low at 80.6, a drop of 0.62 from the preceding week.

Market Maxim to Remember.

It's an old maxim that the penalties of overstaying a bull market are more costly than buying too early in a bear market.

STOCK PRICE TREND PROVES IRREGULAR

Sharp Losses at Beginning of Week Are Followed by Upward Moves.

SALES SLUMP HEAVILY

New York, May 11 (A.P.).—The stock market followed its old pattern of readjustment during the past week, after the storm of selling blew itself out with a final mighty and destructive blast Monday.

Late Monday and on Tuesday, share prices went through the spectacular rebound which normally follows a decline of the violence of that just witnessed. Thereafter, the market packed and filled, as trading dwindled to the lowest levels since early March.

Despite considerable irregularity of price movement, after the violent rebound of early in the week, closing prices averaged well above the low levels reached at the end of last week. The price index of 90 leading shares showed a gain for the period of 10 1-5 points, indicating that about 40 per cent of the extreme loss of the recent reaction has been regained.

There were several developments late in the week of a character to steady the market, although traders were inclined to shorten their sales pending further testing of price levels and more definite signs of business recovery. The weekly brokerage loan figures were among the more pleasing displays of the week, showing a reduction of $200,000,000, which cuts off about 20 per cent of the extreme gain since the low level of last December.

Furthermore, the copper situation seemed to be finally adjusting itself. After a further cut in the metal price of 12½ cents, large scale consumer buying suddenly appeared, so large in fact that some of the larger producers were rumored to be considering a moderate upward revision of quotations.

In brokerage circles, an extended period of rather quiet and irregular markets is now looked for. This would be in keeping with past experience. Also, with business conditions continuing rather spotty, it is regarded in many quarters as a logical sequel to the unpleasant experiences of operators who ignored business conditions in the bull movement of a few weeks ago. It is pointed out, however, that stock prices are now comparatively low, and business on the mend, despite the fact that the process is slow.

Reparations Boost Index of Bond Prices

After the general reduction in rediscount rates in this country and in Europe, consequent on the conference of bankers in Brussels, it is not surprising that the Irving Fisher price index of 70 bonds should rise last week. The way is being paved for floating the reparations bonds. In the downward movement of bond prices beginning March 21, the low point was reached April 30; to date the index has gained 0.81 per cent over the low, of which 0.15 per cent was added last week.

Of the selected bonds 47 per cent rose over the closing of the preceding week; 27 per cent declined, and 26 per cent remained the same.

Lip Rouge Stains Riviera Table Linen

Cannes, France, May 11 (A.P.).—Restaurant menus in this French Riviera resort now carry the following: "Notice to customers—It is absolutely not permitted to wipe rouged lips on either the tablecloth or the napkins."

The directors took this action because of the growing popularity of a new rouge which leaves a red stain on linen. A considerable number of men were bad offenders, one director stated.

Magpie Prevents Jailbreak.

Perth, Australia, May 11 (A.P.).—After sawing at the bars of his cell for weeks, a convict at Bunbury was foiled by a magpie. The bird, emerging from the bush, settled near the jail and mimicked the sound of the saw. Wardens investigated and found the convict had almost completed his task.

FIRM WILL LAUNCH BRANCH IN CAPITAL

William A. Wood to Manage Robert Garrett & Sons Office in City.

OPENING SET FOR JUNE 1

Robert Garrett & Sons, one of the oldest and best-known banking houses in the country, has acquired offices in the Shoreham Building as the new home for their Washington branch, to be opened June 1.

William A. Wood, until recently head of the bond department of the Central National Bank of New York, has become affiliated with the Garrett firm as manager of the local office.

Mr. Wood is familiar with local banking interests and is well known here and in Baltimore. He has had seventeen years' experience in investment banking through connections with important underwriting houses. His early training was acquired with Alex. Brown & Sons, of Baltimore. Since then he has held important executive positions with Hemphill, Noyes & Co., of New York; the Central National Bank, now merged with the Bank of the Manhattan Co., New York City, and with Robert Garrett & Sons, of Baltimore.

The House of Garrett was founded 90 years ago by Robert Garrett, who was identified with the history of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. Two members of the Garrett family have been presidents of that road.

One member of the present firm, John W. Garrett, now Ambassador to Rome, has had a successful career in American diplomacy. He was appointed secretary of the American Legation at The Hague 29 years ago, and has served as secretary to the embassies in Berlin and Rome, as Minister to Venezuela, Argentina, the Netherlands and Luxemburg, and, at the outbreak of the World War, was sent to France as a special representative of the State Department in the American Embassy in Paris.

Uruguay Planning Nation Centenary

Anniversary of Independence Set for July 18, Says Varela on Radio.

Uruguay will celebrate the first centenary of her independence on July 18, Dr. Jacobo Varela, minister of that country to the United States, declared yesterday afternoon in a talk over the Columbia Broadcasting System network from Station WMAL. In those 100 years "not a cloud," he said, has appeared in its relations with the United States.

"Now our thoughts are directed to the creation of a real democracy with equal opportunity and social justice to all men and women," he said. "The Republica of Uruguay has been called the political laboratory of the American continent, and there is an element of truth in that description."

Dr. James Brown Scott, president of the American Institute of International Law, introduced the diplomat. Uruguyan musical selections were included in the program which was a part of the conclave of nations series.

The Memorial Temple, which has been secured for the conferring of the degrees and the entertainment of visiting Masons, was used for the first time last fall, when the largest class ever to enter Scottish Rite Masonry in Virginia received the degrees. Former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd was among those receiving the degrees at that time.

Percy E. Clift is secretary of the local Scottish Rite bodies, and he is busy at present assisting in working out the program for the reunion. Announcement from the office of Representative Oscar DePriest, of Illinois, of the failure of Alonzo Souleigh Parham, colored, former cadet at West Point, to pass examinations in mathematics enabling him to return to his classes, has brought with it the statement from the colored representative that he will name another candidate for West Point at an early date.

Parham was honorably dismissed in January, together with 62 white students, for failure in mid-winter examinations. ## MUMPS CASES HIGH IN PRINCE GEORGES

April Statistics Announced in Report of County Health Officer.

CHURCH FETE PLANNED

Mumps, measles and whooping cough led the list of communicable diseases reported to the county health officer in Prince Georges County, Md., in the month of April, according to the report of Dr. William S. Keister, county health officer.

There were 29 cases of mumps, 24 of measles and 22 of whooping cough reported; 15 cases of pneumonia, 5 influenza, 4 tuberculosis, 3 scarlet fever, 2 chickenpox and 7 social diseases reported.

A total of 745 pupils was examined in medical inspections held at Bowie, District Line, Fairmont Heights, Hyattsville Elementary, Laurel High and Highland Park public schools and at St. Mary's Parochial School in Upper Marlboro. The dental clinic at Laurel Elementary School showed 40 examinations, 46 extractions, 62 fillings and 1 cleaning of school children's teeth.

An increase in births and deaths was reported for the month of March by the doctor, as compared with the same month in the previous year. There were 94 births in March, 1930, and 88 in March, 1929. Deaths totaled 54 in 1930 and 43, in 1929. The alarming feature of the death rate is that there is a decided increase in deaths under 1 year of age shown. There were fourteen such deaths in March, 1930, and only three in March, 1929.

Vital statistics are recorded a month behind other statistics by the Health Department, because of the difficulty of gathering such reports.

Dr. Keister reported that Negro health week was observed in a number of schools and communities and that much interest was manifested by the colored school supervisors and teachers. Health lectures were given in several schools and communities by the health officer.

Plans for the lawn fete, which is to be held June 2 to 7 for the benefit of St. Jerome's Catholic Church, Hyattsville, have been practically completed, according to A. C. "THE DIVORCEE." A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presentation of Ursula Parrott's story, "Ex-Wife," adapted for the screen by Nick Grinde and Zelda Sears, featuring Norma Shearer, supported by Conrad Nagel, Chester Morris and Robert Montgomery. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Reviewed Saturday night (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

The age-old problem of whether the sauce for the goose is also sauce for the gander has ever been one of the most generally used themes of motion picture producers. Here is the latest preachment against the double standard.

While it can not be said to offer anything new on this engaging subject, Ursula Parrott's story offers Norma Shearer a golden chance to make a convincing plea for the establishment of a single standard of morality. Miss Shearer accepts this chance and conclusively proves her point, although at times her action, as well as that of Chester Morris, can hardly be condoned on any basis of ethics.

Miss Shearer dominates the entire picture, but her portrayal does not reach th acme of excellence that was hers in "The Last of Mrs. Cheney." Nor does Mr. Morris, who has the principal role opposite Miss Shearer, approach that smoothness and conviction which he achieved in "The Case of Sergt. Grischa."

In the principal supporting roles are Conrad Nagel, as the erstwhile lover, and Robert Montgomery, as the philandering gentleman who assists Miss Shearer in her marital upset.

Florence Eldridge, Zelda Sears, Mary Doran, Tyler Brooke, George Irving, Robert Elliott and Helen Johnson are the others assisting in the drama.

In "Men o' War," Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy present one of their drollest, if not funniest, comedies, although built along the customary lines.

The Hearst Metrotone News furnishes the current events in pictures, chief among which are the best pictures of the eclipse yet given to the public.

For an overture, the Columbia Orchestra, under the direction of Claude Burrows, presents the delightful "Liebestraum."

"SONG OF THE FLAME." First National all-Technicolor production, adapted from the operetta of the same name by Oscar Hammerstein 2d and Otto Harbach, with music by George Gershwin and Herbert Stothart, featuring Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray, supported by Noah Beery and Alice Genile. Directed by Alan Crosland. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

There comes to mind no production in which mass action has been so effectively set off by deft use of color, or a people's mood so clearly defined by the adroit utilization of ensemble singing, as in the seething musical drama of the Russian revolution.

Beyond employing the events attending the fall of the Romanoffs as background for a simple love story between an aristocrat of the old regime and a peasant girl who has filled the role of a sort of Slavic Joan of Arc, "Song of the Flame" makes no pretense to historical accuracy or purpose. Neither does it go in much for the painstaking building of situation or character, adhering rather to the episodic and sketchy treatment indigenous to operetta and musical comedy. It is notable, nevertheless, for the remarkable clarity of its color treatment in vast scenes of sweeping action and the valuable use it has made of a long succession of expository and rousing chorals, far excelling in these regards anything of a similar nature that has heretofore been attempted.

The piece derives its name from the inflammatory anthem which Aniuta, called "The Flame" by her fellow revolutionists, sings up and down the length and breadth of her native land. Thinking that she is inspiring her countrymen to acts of freedom, honor and valor, she discovers finally that she has set the torch only to an explosive period of rapine, pillage and murder that threatens the destruction of everything and everybody she holds most dear. In the visualization of this movement of the story, vivid contrasts between the luxury of the monarchial regime in Petrograd and the frugal festivities of the simple people of the countryside are made dramatically eloquent.

It is in the scenes of the simple peasant festival in the little village of which Aniuta and Prince Volodya both were natives, and the later march against and sacking of the palace of the ruling house, on a height overlooking the town, that Technicolor is put to the most far-flung and pretentious purposes so far achieved in natural tints.

The individual performances, excellent as several of them are, are scarcely more than incidental to these more impressive intervals of thickly peopled and teeming action. In both her reading of the lines and vocal passages Bernice Claire, in the role of "The Flame," consistently outdistances Alexander Gray, cast as the prince. Miss Claire's adaptability to the requirements of the cameras and microphones is conspicuously evident. Mr. Gray seems not to have progressed at all since his first screen appearance and in his present role betrays a persistent and unfortunate inclination to sing off key.

Noah Beery lends more color and authenticity to his one solo, "One Little Drink," sung in a resonant basso profundo, than to all the rest of his portrayal of the sinister part of Konstantin, Red leader who saw in revolution only an excuse to plunder and get rich—for which he was paid off by the firing squad. Alice Gentle displays her fine soprano in a role wholly insufficient to do it justice. Bert Roach, Inez Courtney Ivan Linow occupy places of minor importance in the cast.

Among the supplementary features, the most noteworthy is the appearance of Elias Breeskin in flambouyant, but none the less musicianly, violin renditions of Wieniawski's "Souvenir de Moscow" and Drigo's "Valse Bluette," played as a solo interlude in the orchestra's "Russian Fantasy" overture. Mr. Breeskin's virtuosity was well demonstrated in these numbers by his easy command of tremolo, double-stop and overtones, as well as purity of tone.

The program is futher augmented by a comprehensive newsreel; "Danger," a short Vitaphone sketch with an O Henry climax, and a Lloyd Hamilton all-talking comedy, "Follow the Swallow," which may best be described as a complete washout!

METROPOLITAN

"HOLD EVERYTHING." A Warner Bros. Technicolor presentation of a musical comedy by DeSylva, Brown and Henderson and John McGowan, adapted for the screen by Robert Lord, featuring Winnie Lightner and Joe E. Brown, supported by Sally O'Neil, Bert Roach and Georges Carpentier. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Reviewed Saturday evening (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

"Hold Everything!" Either Joe E. Brown or Winnie Lightner would have been entirely adequate for an evening of hilarious galety, but with both together in one picture—well, hold everything, you ain't seen nothin' yet!

Any picture that brings Miss Lightner and Mr. Brown together, supported by such a trio as Georges Carpentier, Sally O'Neil and Bert Roach, can not be anything but a howling success.

In a play with such a cast it is no easy task to pick the outstanding member. And, perchance there is none. However, Joe E. Brown has most of this splendid group of comedians looking like tragedians, so effectively does his comedy transcend that of the others, with the exception, of course, of Miss Lightner's. Mr. Brown, with what he terms his abundant supply if "IF," is a scream, and his many numbers with Miss Lightner are only slightly short of side-splitting.

Miss Lightner is at her best in this production and her songs are equally as hilarious as her pantomimic antics.

Bert Roach and Sally O'Neill add no little to the rapidity with which one comical situation follows another.

Georges Carpentier is at his best in the prize ring, where he stages a sensational comeback.

The Technicolor treatment is excellent. The direction and technical treatment, both optical and auricular, are admirable. The two bouts pictured are convincingly done with Mr. Brown's the more ridiculous; Mr Carpentier's the more realistic.

To continue the excruciating hilarity of the evening, Mickeye Mouse and a bevy of lively skeletons raise whoopee in "The Haunted House." Graham MacNamee newscasts the latest events for Universal to conclude an ace-high evening of merriment.

PALACE

"IN GAY MADRID." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, adapted from a story entitled "La Casa de la Troya," with Ramon Novarro starred, supported by Dorothy Jordon, Beryl Mercer, Claude King and William V. Mong. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

This romantic drama of youth, with its delightfully whimsical humor, lilting songs and distinctive Spanish flavor, to my mind, affords Ramon Novarro the most satisfactory vehicle he has had since the coming of dialogue and song to the screen. And this despite a story treatment that decidedly leaves something to be desired in smooth-flowing continuity, especially in the climatic and closing episodes.

"In Gay Madrid," nevertheless, is a thoroughly interesting and enjoyable picture, executed with many illuminating touches and in perfect taste, even taking into consideration the stringent requirements of a peculiarly punctilious Castillian social code. In point of fact, the film should have been called "In Solemn Santiago." The only incidents occurring in Madrid are those brief preliminary excitements in a night club where Ricardo gets into the fracas that leads his father to exile him to a secluded school in remote Galicia, fourteen hours from the capital. It is here that Ricardo falls in love, encounters bitter rivalry, is tricked by his Madrid dancer friend, fights a duel and otherwise perpetuates the Spanish tradition of youth in the grip of romance.

Novarro has never, to my knowledge, entered so enthusiastically into the spirit of a role as he does in this admirably chosen medium for the display of his acquired and his natural talents. The atmosphere and spirit of the play, of course, are native to him. To this no doubt is to be attributed, at least in part, the splendid degree of conviction this excellent young actor is able to impart to his character.

His singing, too, is engaging and by no means slighted in shaping his share in the action. His voice, which seemed barytone in its first recording, by the processes of perfected mechanisms now no doubt registers correctly as a rather robust tenor—not so robust, however, as several of the others heard in his support in male ensembles that are as effective as any the screen has provided to date.

Opposite the star, Dorothy Jordon contributes a particularly fine bit of demure sophistication in winning the love of the son of her father's old friend by seemingly repulsing him at every turn. Beryl Mercer, as Tia Concha, the sagacious aunt who is Carminla's mentor in hours of need, offers another flawless characterization and Claude King and William V. Mong appear advantageously as the fathers of Ricardo and Corminia, respectively. Many others have been judiciously chosen for the roles of less importance.

On the stage is one of the best miniature revues of the season, presided over by Dave Apollon, a versatile young Slav, who plays, dances and clowns and between times introduces his own royal Filipino orchestra of mandolinists and guitarists; Betsy Reese, broken rhythm toe dancer; Burns and Swanson, adagio dancers; Danzi Goodell, singer and dancer, and the Chester Hale Girls. There's more to this than meets the eye here.

The Hearst Metrotone News was the only other feature of the bill at the performance I attended. N. B. B.

FOX

"THE GOLDEN CALF." Fox Movietone production, featuring El Brendel, supported by Sue Carol, Marjorie White and Jack Mulhall. Directed by Millard Webb. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by C. Ransom.

El Brendel, whose wistful comedy has brought him into a certain repute by way of "The Cock-Eyed World," "Hot for Paris" and various other talking films, has a good enough right to take a try at stardom, and he can hardly fail to provide a liberal measure of amusement so long as he stays on the scene. He was born with a sort of puckish disposition that clings to all his actions, and that may be why he seems to have learned his Swedish dialect by reading a joke-book instead of listening to a Swede. Still, if that is a fair guess at the fact, it may signify that his progress as a comic artist will have limits.

It may also be feared that "The Golden Calf" is not a vehicle that will set him far on his travels. So far as the story goes he is more or less of a side issue, a minor element. A bolder opportunity to command the scene, if it had been allowed him, might have been a stroke worth while. As it is, Sue Carol, Jack Mulhall, and Marjorie White are fully as much in the limelight.

If there is already a literature of Legs, this story probably holds to the established low level of good sense and good taste. To one who is only mildly fascinated by this anatomical field, the whole affair may not rise above a minus point on the scale of interest. The fun is supposed to arise from the eagerness of an illustrator, with a studio in Greenwich Village, to find a model with legs that will meet the ideal demands of his tape measure. Sue Carol, as his secretary, is prim and shy, with charms more or less hidden under glasses and skirts. Now who do you suppose it is that wakes up in the night and discovers that her underpins are perfect? Yes, and she turns out just beautiful and wins the artist, who is Jack Mulhall. She is aided by a lively singing and dancing friend who is no less than Marjorie White. El Brendel's part in the piece is to be a friend of the artist and muddle up the plot.

There are some clever lines in the piece, a grand display of leggery among the swarming damsels who respond to the artist's advertisement, and some fairly good musical numbers, brought in by way of an amateur Village show that winds up the story.

On the stage the Panchon and Marco idea garden produces this week an "idea in green," which means that it is all Irish. Alexander Callam presides acceptably and exercises an excellent barytone voice. Franklyn Record proves to be another fine singer of Irish melodies, and he is assisted by a number of handsome boys and girls in green. Born and Lawrence are original comedians. Doris Nierly is an odd bit of feminine personality who can't help being funny. Moran and Weston are on the bill, also Way Watts and Arminda.

The newsreel includes a remarkable view of the solar eclipse in California. Mr. Brusiloff and his fine orchestra offer Von Suppe's overture "Morning, Noon and Night."
